Conciliatory Spirit Is Seen in French Answer on Tariff

Reply Declared To Contain Possible Basis for Adjustment of Differences of Countries.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF PROVISIONS CITED

America Ready to Investigate as Suggested But Unwilling To Make Promises in Advance.

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—Study of the latest French note on tariffs over the week-end has satisfied administration officials that it was written in a conciliatory spirit and that it contains a possible basis for adjustment of the difficulties between the two countries.

The French government called attention to section 315 of the American tariff act which is the flexible or equalization, provision. Under it, the president may raise or lower statutory duties in case investigations show that costs of production of any commodity abroad require such action in order to make the American rate represent correctly and equalization of production costs as compared to similar home products.

Will Undertake Probe.

It was learned on high authority tonight that the Washington government is virtually certain to express complete willingness to undertake such investigations with regard to French goods, without, however, committing itself in advance of the result to be found. It is bound by law, officials here hold, to follow the findings of the investigators and to raise or lower duties as those findings dictate, leaving no possibility of prior assurance of lower rates.

If this condition is acceptable to France as a basis for negotiation of a commercial treaty, in all probability the next critical point in the correspondence would involve the status American goods are to enjoy while the treaty negotiations are in progress.

The original American request was, the same status they enjoyed before the French decree of August 30 put into effect the higher rates regarded as discriminatory against American goods. Some increases in French minimum rates were also included under the decree, but those are not involved in the controversy since they bear equally against all nations.

First French Proposal.

The first French reply, proposing a treaty based on reciprocity, said if treaty negotiations were undertaken American goods would be given a status of 50 per cent of the maximum rates which would leave them still at a decided disadvantage in competing in the French market with German articles or those from a score of countries with which France has complete or partial most-favored-nation treaties. That proposal will not prove acceptable to the Washington government and unless France can see her way to a more lenient adinterim arrangement, the treaty conversations might collapse on that point.

The French note, which will be made public in text tomorrow together with the French and American communications which preceded it, goes deeply into the tariff-making history of the United States to support its contentions. It complains of the high rate of duty which is declared to have closed the American market to certain French goods, urging that post-war settlements among the powers are possible only on the basis of exchange of goods. It also complains against American agricultural quarantines and the restrictions of other American laws, presumably such as the pure food and prohibition acts, of certain classes of French goods.

In the latter connection, the American reply, which is still to be drafted, and which probably will not be handed to the foreign office until late in the week, is likely to give assurance that the operation of all of these laws will be studied carefully in order to see that they embarrass trade as little as possible.

One other French complaint has to do with the cost finding activities of American agents abroad. The state department has made no secret of the fact that it has found these activities irritating to nearly all governments. Whether it is prepared to assure France that an administration effort toward repeal of the objected to provisions of law which authorize such activities is not clear.

HEAT DRIVES EAST TO COAST RESORTS

Flareback of Summer Will Stay Until Wednesday, According to U. S. Forecaster.

New York, October 2.—(United News.)—A flare-back of summer heat drove the eastern half of the United States back to bathing beaches and swimming pools over the week-end.

Predictions of the weather bureau indicated the hot spell would stay until Wednesday, although rains within the next 24 hours were expected to make the high temperatures less oppressive.

From the Mississippi river valley to the Atlantic seaboard thermometers ranged from the high seventies into the nineties.

Football squads which perspired through their games Saturday before shirt-sleeved crowds resembling midsummer baseball rooters, face the prospect of training through two more days of heat before a break gives them regular football weather.

Donald Morey, a substitute guard on the Manhattan college football team, who was prostrated by the heat during Saturday's game with Rutgers, died Sunday in a hospital at New Brunswick, N. J. Morey never recovered consciousness after collapsing on the Rutger gridiron.

Concessionaires at scores of Atlantic ocean resorts from Maine to southern New Jersey welcomed the tropical weather. It offered what they beleved to be a last chance to make up for the profits they missed during the series of rainy days in July and August.

Weather bureau records showed this to be the first October heat wave in 17 years for the eastern part of the country. Temperatures in New York city ranged from 80 to 85, but a gentle south wind came to the relief of residents of the congested districts.

Beach resorts on Long Island and down the Jersey coast presented a strange combination of women's styles. Many of the more fashionable ladies along the boardwalks insisted on dressing by the calendar. These were obviously uncomfortable under their trim serge, or velvet or woolen garments. The less fastidious women appeared to be enjoying their outing in cool printed silks and organdies.

H. H. DEAN DIES HERE SUNDAY; DEATH SUDDEN

ONE OF GREATEST LAWYERS IN STATE

Gainesville Man Was Also Active Politically; Gave Generously to Cause of Education.

Colonel Herbert Henry Dean, of Gainesville, one of Georgia's foremost attorneys and philanthropists, died at the Wesley Memorial hospital here at 1 o'clock Sunday after a brief illness. He was 66 years of age.

Colonel Dean suffered a sudden inflamation of the throat at his residence in Gainesville last Friday. He was rushed immediately to the Atlanta hospital, but failed to rally from subsequent operations.

Up to the time of his sudden illness, Colonel Dean was hale and hearty, going about the work of his large law practice with his customary vigor and enthusiasm.

His contemporaries knew him as one of the most tireless workers who ever faced a Georgia jury. Though his case might be of great or minor importance, he threw all his tremendous energy into the fight.

Colonel Dean found his greatest pleasure in his work, although he found unlimited time for the cause of education in the north Georgia mountains, and for the advancement of the Presbyterian church at Gainesville, of which he was an elder and mainstay.

A native of White county, Mr. Dean spent his boyhood in the Nacoochee valley. He entered the University of Georgia and worked his way through school, graduating with honors from the law school.

Immediately on graduation he went to Gainesville and set up a law practice there, about 40 years ago.

Colonel Dean's reputation as a corporation lawyer spread rapidly, and with it his practice grew until at the time of his death he was one of the busiest attorneys in the state.

Active in Politics.

In later years Colonel Dean devoted much of his time to the democratic party. He was a delegate to the democratic convention from the state-at-large since the year of 1912, and it was on a second of his at Baltmore in 1912 that Oscar Underwood's nomination was confirmed.

When a commission form of government was adopted in Gainesville about five years ago, political leaders turned to Colonel Dean as first choice for mayor. He was elected by a popular majority and served in this capacity in 1924 and 1925.

Colonel Dean was devoted to the interests of the mountain youth of his section, and was one of the most generous contributors to educational funds. The Nacoochee institute, located near his boyhood home, was his favorite beneficiary, and to its upkeep he contributed large sums annually. It is estimated that his donations to various educational causes in North Georgia totaled more than $100,000.

Educational Leader.

He took an active part in the administration of the institute, a denominational school maintained by the Presbyterian church, South, for the mountain youth, and was for many years chairman of the board of trustees.

Colonel Dean was also a former president and trustee of the Georgia state sanitarium at Milledgeville. He was at one time president of the board of trustees at Brenau college,

Highway Chairman Salary Unlawful, Says Judge Morris

URGES GOVERNOR TO SECURE RULING

In Letter to Chief Executive, Morris Insists That Road Department Is Unlawfully Operated.

John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway board of Georgia, is drawing his salary "without authority of law" and the special attorney of the board is drawing $4,200 a year, although the board has no right to employ such an attorney, according to the contention of Judge Newton A. Morris, of Marietta, prominent Georgia lawyer, in a letter letter written Saturday to Governor L. G. Hardman.

Judge Morris cites a list of statutes to support his contention and calls on the governor to refer the matter to the attorney general of the state for a ruling.

This disclosure comes as an interesting aftermath to the recent fight before the legislature for the confirmation by the state senate of a successor to Chairman Holder. Three successors were named by Governor Hardman, but friends of Holder who controlled a majority vote of the senate, succeeded in a fight to prevent the confirmation of any one of the successors named.

"Midnight Law."

The letter of Judge Morris also brings back into the limelight the original "midnight law" passed by the legislature on the closing night of its session in 1922 under which the chairman of the board was given the right to act on all matters brought up in intervals between regular meetings of the state board itself. According to Judge Morris' contention this act was repealed in 1925.

Governor Hardman was in Athens Saturday and will not return until Tuesday, when he is expected to take action on the request made by Judge Morris that the matter be referred to the attorney general.

The letter of Judge Morris to the governor is as follows:

Judge Morris' Letter.

"As a citizen and taxpayer of this state, I desire to call your attention to the act of the general assembly of Georgia, and the amendments thereof, creating the state highway department, and certain provisions thereof providing for certain officers, and prescribing their duties, compensation, et cetera.

"I insist that under the law as it now exists, this department, in the particulars hereinafter referred to, is being operated in violation of the law creating it, as follows:

"(a) The highway board has an attorney employed at an annual salary of at least $4,200; to advise and represent the board in all legal matters. They have no right to employ an attorney, and have had no such right since August 21, 1922.

"(b) The chairman of the board is drawing an annual salary of $6,000. He has no right to draw this salary, nor has he had such right since August 27, 1925. The only compensation which he has been entitled to receive, under the law, since August 27, 1925, is $10 per day while the highway board is actually in session.

"(c) The chairman of the board is exercising all of the authority when the full board is not in session, in determining the number of employees of the highway department, designat-

BUSINESS SHOW WILL OPEN DOORS THIS AFTERNOON

52 Nationally-Known Producers of Office Equipment Have Booths Ready for Opening.

With booths of 52 nationally-prominent concerns waiting in readiness, the Southern Business show—first exposition of efficiency machinery ever staged south of the Mason and Dixon line—will throw wide its doors at the auditorium at 1 o'clock this afternoon for a week's run.

The show will be in the nature of a comprehensive exhibit of the most modern time and labor-conserving office equipment, and is scheduled to bring to Atlanta interested business men and women from all parts of the south.

S. H. Baynes, manager of the show, announced Sunday night that every detail for the show is in hand and that all is set for the rising of the curtain on the first exposition of its kind ever held outside of New York, Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco.

"The business show is going to be a great success from its very inception," Mr. Baynes declared. "Business people who visit it will find it invaluable in giving them new ideas by means of which they may improve their own offices and practice economies in conservation of time and labor they have scarcely dreamed possible.

"The show will be an education in efficiency, and progressiveness, and in completeness. The management strongly urges all business men and women to take advantage of this opportunity to see efficiency actually a work."

A feature of the exposition will be an obsolete office of the period of 1897, with its old-fashioned equipment and air of leisurely slackness. In contrast with this will be the office of 1927, with its modern machinery of every kind and its high rating of efficiency. This feature of the show was arranged by William F. Milburn, a leader in the enterprise launched for the first time here by office equipment men.

A grand total of 130,000 tickets to the business show has been broadcast among business concerns throughout the south, and in many instances factories have sent representatives and corps of workers here to put on practical demonstrations of the workings of their machinery.

INDICTMENTS NEAR IN JERSEY MURDER

Two Persons Will Be Named in Lilliendahl Death, According to Assistant Prosecutor.

Hammonton, N. J., October 2.—An indictment for the murder of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, 72, slain last September 15, will be asked of the Atlantic county grand jury this week. Two persons will be named in the indictment, if granted, according to Assistant Prosecutor S. Cameron Hinkel today.

Continued absence of Willis Beach, 58, missing South Vineland sheik of the backwoods, will not delay presentation of the case, it was asserted.

But a $2,000 reward for arrest of the murderer, offered by the National Association for the Welfare of and Advancement of American Colored Folk, with headquarters in New York city, is expected to spur search for the missing poultryman. Beach, thought to be hiding in the woods around Weymouth.

Announcement that two persons will be named in the presentment to the grand jury brought a vehement protest today from Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, 42-year-old widow of the victim.

"It is dreadful, all this talk about me," she said. "It is an outrage to bring the Beach family into this. I would like to help find the two negroes responsible for my husband's death and that is why I have not uttered a word of protest.

"But all this talk about me, these vile insinuations, are all lies. And I abhor lies."

Decision to present the case to the grand jury immediately, followed discovery of three new Philadelphia witnesses, who have given affidavits which tentatively establish Beach as the man seen coming out of the swamp shortly before discovery of the murder.

The affivadits corroborate, in many respects, identification of Beach by three Morrisville, Pa., motorists, who drove past soon after the murder.

JORDON TRIAL SET FOR TODAY AT CHARLOTTE

Columbus Wife Expected To Be Present at Preliminary Hearing Set for 1 O'Clock.

PREACHER APPEARS MUCH BEWILDERED

Alienist Who Made Examination of Pastor Declares "It Is Evident Something Is Wrong."

Charlotte, N. C., October 2.—(AP)—Fortified by the protestations of the woman he claims as "his true wife" that "she will give her life to clear him," the Rev. Willis T. Jordon, Columbus, Ga., Methodist minister, will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock on charges of bigamy.

Admittedly bewildered by the maze of claimants with whom he allegedly entered into the marriage contract, the minister has sat in his cell in Mecklenburg county jail since he was returned here Friday from Grand Rapids, Mich., for the most part apathetically ruminating on the turns of fate which enmeshed him in his present predicament.

Only at infrequent intervals has he displayed sufficient animation to discuss his alleged bigamous escapades.

On only one point has he been emphatic and at all times eager to engage in discussion.

"I am innocent of any intentional wrong doing," he has reiterated. "God knows I have not knowingly committed any crime or wrong."

Claims Amnesia Spells.

If he married the three women claiming to be his wives, he maintains vehemently that "it was during an attack of amnesia," which, he asserts, for months at a time caused him to lapse into total forgetfulness and mental oblivion so far as the continuity of his life was concerned.

Mrs. Emma Landridge Jordon, to whom the minister was married in Charlotte on August 19, was expected to arrive here either late tonight or early tomorrow. She left Columbus yesterday. Last night, interviewed as she passed through Atlanta, she readily admitted that she would not hesitate to disclose all she knew concerning Jordon and his recent activities.

She is accompanied by William T. Gloer, head of the Gloer Detective agency, of Columbus, through whose efforts Jordon, who disappeared from his Columbus home and pastorate several weeks ago, finally was located in a Grand Rapids infirmary, where he was arrested on a warrant charging bigamy.

Dr. J. E. S. Davidson, Charlotte alienist who made an examination of Jordon yesterday, today declared that it is evident "there is something wrong."

Mrs. Vassey Snyder-Jordon, of Winding Gulf, W. Va., whom the minister declares is his only "true wife" and who has announced she will hasten to Charlotte to extend any possible aid at his trial, has written Jordon a letter in which she declares her love for the man and her willingness to testify that he was subject to mental disturbances, headaches, and periodic moments of unconsciousness.

Every effort will be made, in case probable cause is found at tomorrow's preliminary hearing, to list the case for Thursday of this week, it was announced by Tom P. Jemison, attorney for the minister.

Reads Wife's Letter.

Jordon, according to jail attendants, frequently read and re-read today the letter from his "true wife" in West Virginia, the concluding paragraphs of which were as follows:

"Oh, Willis, dear, I will never forsake you . . . Yes, when your trial comes up I will be there to do what I can to help you. I am willing to give my life to save you. I cannot and never could think you had intentionally deserted us. I knew there was something the matter with you—that your mind was not right—ever since you went to Washington, D. C. I know the terrible headaches you had and the moments of unconsciousness.

"Willis, don't give up trusting in God for it will not be long before he will call us both to Him.

"Now, my husband, when they go to your trial, let me know, for I want to be there. I want to see you and I am going to have you put under the care of the best physicians I can find."

CLAIMED BY DEATH

GOVERNOR AUSTIN PEAY.

GOVERNOR PEAY DIES SUDDENLY

Tennessee Executive Succumbs to Effect of Cerebral Hemorrhage; Henry Horton Now Governor.

Nashville, Tenn., October 2.—(AP)—Austin Peay, 51, thrice governor of Tennessee, tonight fulfilled an oft-expressed premonition that he would not live through his final term of office. He died shortly after 8 o'clock from the effect of a cerebral hemorrhage. Governor Peay told close friends during an illness in February that he believed himself to be making his last stand.

More than a month before that, however, he had uttered the prediction to his warm personal and political friend, Senator Hervey Whitfield, in connection with the selection of Senator Henry Horton, of Lewisburg, Marshall county, as speaker of the senate, and next in line of succession to the governor.

He declared he could not choose for himself a better successor, and expressed the opinion that the mantle would be transferred from his shoulders before the end of his term.

Tonight Senator Horton, having motored from his home, paid his respects to the sorrowing family, and received official notification from the Davidson county court clerk, prepared to take the oath of office as governor probably tomorrow.

Body To Lie in State.

The body of Governor Peay will lie in state at the capitol from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Tuesday, it was announced tonight by Colonel Luke Lea, Nashville publisher and intimate friend of the governor. A guard of honor will be furnished by the Tennessee national guard. Simple public services will be held in the hall of representatives Tuesday afternoon, Rev. W. F. Power, of the First Baptist church, officiating. The body will then be returned to the governor's mansion, 2118 West End avenue.

The body will be carried to Clarksville, the governor's home. Burial will take place Wednesday afternoon at an hour to be announced. Services will be held in the Baptist church, in which he had retained his membership. Pallbearers will be announced Tuesday morning.

Friends Alarmed.

As early as 1926 friends became alarmed over the governor's condition, and he was strongly advised not to become a candidate for the third term. The hot sun and constant speaking, however, appeared effective in the reduction of his blood pressure, and after his customary salt water fishing trip on the Mississippi coast he returned in the pink of condition.

Many believe that Governor Peay was a martyr of his work for the Great Smoky Mountains National park, for which he made a trip to Washington and planned incessantly.

Mrs. Peay, the only person in the room with the governor at the time of his fatal attack, and the only imme-

MONDAY PROGRAM

8 A. M.—Gates open.
8:30 A. M.—Swine, cattle and poultry show open.
9 A. M.—Liberal arts, manufacturers and agriculture buildings open.
9:30 A. M.—Midway opens, continuous until 11 p. m.

3:30 P. M.—Great Fussner.
8 P. M.—Ethel Robinson's revue.
9 P. M.—Fireworks.
11 P. M.—Gates close.

While thousands of visitors milled in and out, jammed the midways and stood around where two trainloads of dairy cattle and hogs were being unloaded at Lakewood park Sunday afternoon, more than 1,000 workmen redoubled their efforts in a last-minute preparation to make ready for a record crowd of youngsters today.

Children's and Atlanta day will be observed at the fair today and every city and county school within a radius of 75 miles of the grounds will have a holiday in order that the teachers and students may visit the Southeastern fair. No tickets are necessary and students and school officials are requested to tell the gatekeepers what school they are members of and, with 15 cents, they will then be admitted to the grounds.

An unofficial check of the attendance Sunday reported that up to 4 o'clock in the afternoon more than 20,000 persons had been in the grounds and by 9 o'clock another 20,000 had passed through the gates, boosting the attendance to more than any Sunday during the past three years.

An official check placed the opening crowd Saturday at slightly less than 10,000.

Extensive preparations have been made by fair officials to make this children's day one of the greatest in the history of the fair, and no stone has been left unturned in providing a most elaborate entertainment and amusement program.

Sunday workmen were busy unloading the two special trains of cattle, which arrived from the state fair in Tennessee. The first train was unloaded shortly before noon and the trainmen backed another long string of cars into the park and that was unloaded within a few hours.

Spelling Bee.

One of the educational features of children's day will be the state-wide spelling bee which will be held at 1 o'clock. A $100 cash prize and the title of Georgia's champion speller awaits the victor. Ten other prizes ranging from $50 to $8 will be given to the next best spellers.

Practically every county in the state has a representative ready to take his place in line. Many of the early arrivals have been busy "brushing up" on the long words which are certain to be given out.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of spelling contest, with Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, and M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of education, as assistants. Miss Mary Postell, assistant superintendent of Atlanta schools, and Jere A. Wells, head of the Fulton county schools, will be the referees.

Words in the contest will be given out from the mastery of words, Book No. 2 of the state, and should that list be exhausted, then the 1927 high school spelling list will be used. When those two have been used and contestants are left standing, then the old-fashioned blue-back speller will be brought back into service. It has been the means of determining Georgia's champion speller for the past two years.

Greyhound racing, the first ever attempted in Georgia, will be one of the big features for today. The races will take place on the race

Thousands Again Inspect Constitution Master Home

Estimated That 18,000 Visit Model Dwelling During First Eight Days of Opening.

For the second time since its opening, a week ago, The Constitution's master model home in Avondale Estates Sunday was swamped by visitors bent on gaining new ideas in home construction and home beautifying, officials on hand during the day estimating that several additional thousands passed through the doors of the ideal dwelling.

The Sunday preceding, which was opening day, saw approximately 8,000 people visit the home, and together with the total of visitors who inspected the structure Sunday, September 25, and during the past week, it is estimated that nearly 18,000 have been received.

The master model home, built according to specifications of the Home Owner's Institute and furnished by leading home supply concerns of Atlanta, will be open three more weeks. On week days the hours of inspection are 2 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon and on Sundays the hours are 2 o'clock in the afternoon to 10 o'clock at night.

Throngs Impressed.

The thousands who poured into the home Sunday were deeply impressed with the beauty of the structure and the taste and harmony of the magnificent appointments supplied by the furniture and decorating concerns of Atlanta which are cooperating in the educational movement.

The home itself, which was built by Hoke N. Smith, Avondale contractor, according to plans of the Home Owners' institute—an organization of the nation's leading architects and builders—is designed to show in a graphic way the many advantages of using only nationally advertised and approved materials in home building—advantages that make for beauty, comfort and permanence of the home structure.

Cooperating furniture firms interested in the home supplied their choicest merchandise for the structure for the purpose of showing how attractive homes may be made by good taste in selection of fittings, and all are enthusiastic over the warm reception the home has met.

Willis Praises Home.

"It is a magnificent demonstration of true home building possibilities," G. F. Willis, owner of Avondale Estates and a leading figure in the home movement, said Sunday. "The public has demonstrated in no uncertain way its appreciation of the beauty and refinement of the master home, and all who are taking part in the educational movement feel that we have been amply repaid in every way for the trouble and expense involved in the master home.

"The people who have visited the home appear to be deeply interested in either building or in improving their homes, and the master home is sure to be of inestimable value to them as well as a great benefit to the business concerns participating."

Home furnishing leaders engaged in outfitting the home have expressed keen gratification at the success with which the structure is meeting.

With these The Constitution joins in extending a cordial invitation to the general public to visit the home during the coming weeks and inspect it in its every department.

Million Germans Honor Hindenburg on Birthday

:: CELEBRATION CALLED GREATEST SINCE 1871 ::

Berlin, October 3.—(AP)—Von Hindenburg was first in the hearts of his countrymen today as never before. Not since William I led the German armies through the Brandenburger gate in 1871 on their return from the Franco-Prussian war has Berlin witnessed an ovation like that showered on Paul von Hindenburg today on the occasion of his 80th birthday.

It was primarily a tribute to von Hindenburg, the man that found an outlet in the veritable drumfire cheering which echoed and re-echoed along the route which he traversed, but its political significance is set down as a tangible asset to the German republic, for the president's natal day was the signal for a political truce in which his services to the new Germany found free acknowledgment from friends and foe alike. The colors of the republic predominated in the display of bunting throughout the city.

Unyielding Barriers.

A warm autumn sun beamed benignly on the octogenaria president as he leisurely motored through a 12-mile lane, flanked with guards of honor, back of whom men, women and children were massed until the house fronts formed unyielding barriers.

Veteran police officials were inclined to estimate the turnout which applauded the president on the drive to the stadium at not less than one million. Another hundred thousand greeted him in the huge amphitheater among whom were 40,000 singing school children. Lifting his top hat and bowing to right and left, von Hindenburg acknowledged the unending adulations, his face retaining its familiar immobile expression, his form solidly erect.

The president began his crowded birthday celebration by attending a harvest thanksgiving in his favorite church. A modest chapel in the heart of the city, where the preacher took his text from II Corinthian ix: 66. "But this I say, He which soweth

U. S. PRISON GUARD KILLED IN CRASH

W. O. Anderson, 52, guard at the federal penitentiary, was fatally injured Sunday afternoon when his automobile was struck by a Southern railway train at Sawtell's crossing, in the Lakewood section, while his son G. W. Anderson, 26, escaped with bruises and cuts.

On his way to work from his home on Jonesboro road, the prison guard was driving the automobile while his son sat beside him, it was reported. The son was to have carried the car back home after leaving his father at the federal prison. Full details of the accident were unobtainable.

The elder Anderson is dead as the result of a fractured skull and internal injuries, while the son escaped with severe lacerations and bruises on the left hand, back and knees.

In another automobile accident Sunday afternoon, J. T. Frier, 21, of Red Oak, was seriously injured. The accident happened at Cook's crossing near College Park, but it was not known whether the automobile struck a train, trolley car or another automobile, as Frier was dazed and unable to give a complete account of the mishap.

Frier was rushed to Grady hospital in the ambulance of A. C. Hemperley & Son, of East Point, and was found to have possible fracture of the skull and jaw.

Frier said that there were two other persons in the automobile, and that he was picked up by passing motorists. He was unable to give the name of the driver of the car.

Others injured Sunday in automobile accidents were: F. C. McDonald, 48, of 308 Williams street, cuts on forehead; Gilbert Kent, 17, of 841 Rose circle, right shoulder cut and bruises; and Miss Mable Johnson, 19, of Decatur, sprained back. No reports of these three accidents had been filed with police.

According to witnesses, the little Price girl ran out into the street behind several automobiles parked near the curb in the business section. She was crossing the street to meet her brother, it was said. Imogene was knocked to the ground, receiving the fracture of the skull when her head struck.

DIAZ TO DECORATE 50 U. S. MARINES

Managua, Nicaragua, October 2.—(AP)—Announcement was made today that President Diaz will decorate the fifty officers and enlisted men of the marines and constabulary, who fought and decisively defeated 200 rebels at Telpaneca on September 19.

Two marines, S. C. Russell, of Finela, Ala., and James A. Glasser, of Disputanta, Va., met death in the battle and their decorations will be sent to their families.

General Carlos Salgado commanded the rebels in the Telpaneca fight. Twenty of his men were killed, fifteen wounded and the remainder dispersed.

The national penitentiary of Nicaragua will come under the control of the constabulary this month and a marine officer will be installed as warden.

For the first time in many months there are no political prisoners in this jail now.

H. H. DEAN DIES SUDDENLY SUNDAY

near Gainesville, and also of the board of trustees at Riverside Military academy.

Some of the most important law suits in the history of the state have been handled by Colonel Dean. His law firm in Gainesville was known as Dean and Wright, composed of Colonel Dean, his son, H. H. Dean, Jr., and his brother-in-law, Frank C. Wright.

Mr. Dean is survived by his widow, who was Miss Callie Law, of Union Springs, Ala.; two sons, H. H. Dean, Jr., of Gainesville, and Austin F. Dean, of Atlanta; three daughters, Mrs. Frank Spratlin, of Atlanta; Mrs. Joel C. Harris, Jr., of Atlanta, and Mrs. Frank C. Wright, of Gainesville; two sisters, Mrs. T. O. Parker, of Mount Airy, and Mrs. Guy Clopton, of Gainesville.

Colonel Dean represented W. D. Hoffman, trustee, in the recent Adair and Senter litigation. For the past 25 years he has been district representative of the Georgia Power company, while he was chief counsel for the Gainesville Midland railroad, the Gainesville Cotton Mills and the Pacolet Cotton Mills, of Gainesville.

It was Colonel Dean's active and enthusiastic advocation of Gainesville's natural advantages for a large cotton mill that brought the great Chicopee Mills to that city recently, his friends say. Many thousands of dollars were brought to the community by the new company, which employs one of the largest forces of workmen in north Georgia.

Colonel Dean was a member of the Capital City club here, of the Chattahoochee Golf club, at Gainesville, and the Rotary club of that city.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at Gainesville, the time to be announced later.

MILLION GERMANS HONOR HINDENBURG

sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully.

At the church service the president was attended only by members of his family. At noon he received a dozen official deputations led by Chancellor Marx and the members of the cabinet. Mgr. Pacelli, papal nuncio, conveyed felicitations from the diplomatic corps which were inscribed on parchment and signed by the resident foreign diplomatic representatives.

Plea for Unity.

The president's reply to Chancellor Marx, who voiced greetings in behalf of the government and German people and eulogized the president's devotion to duty and Christian citizenship, was a fervent plea for national unity and reconciliation with the new order of things in Germany.

"My most sincere thanks to you and the government also applies to the entire German people," said President von Hindenburg, alluding to praise for his services to the fatherland in war and peace. "It was my duty, my life's work, always devoted to the fatherland, and I shall continue to serve this end for the span of life still allotted to me, not for honor or personal profit, nor for any party or group, but to serve, and with God's help, to benefit all Germany.

"It is my fondest hope to see our people united. Many Germans, unable to find a connecting link between the past, present and future, are continuing embittered and suspicious towards their neighbors. Despite the diverging points and interests, it should not be so difficult to find a means of uniting us in thought common to the fatherland, connecting all with the land of our forefathers. Respect for the opinion of others, for honorable new methods, for glorious past traditions must be the foundation of such unity.

Turns to Rhineland.

"In this hour my thoughts turn to our countrymen in the Rhineland, whose liberation from foreign occupation, to our very great disappointment, is not yet perfected. I greet them feelingly, with hope for their speedy freedom, the attainment of which will be the preeminent task of German politics.

"My heart's desire is that all Germans may rise from present adversity in brotherly love, united for a future strong, free, consolidated Germany, with which thought I greet the German people in unshaken faith and loyalty."

Accompanied by the chancellor, the president proceeded to the stadium by automobile, and it was this drive that contributed the culmination to the two-day birthday celebration because of the vociferous manifestations and acclaim from the mass of humanity which flanked the route. Two motorcycle police accompanied the presidential car, while two airplanes flew overhead to the stadium at the same pace traveled by the president. Despite the enormous turnout there was no rowdyism.

HOLDER SALARY IS ILLEGAL, SAYS JUDGE

ing their places of labor, prescribing their duties, fixing their compensation, and exercising the right to discharge such employees. He has no authority to do this, nor has he had such authority since August 27, 1925.

Cites Law.

"In support of these contentions, I call your attention to certain provisions of the law creating the highway department, and certain amendments thereto, as follows:

"The original act creating this department, approved August 18, 1919 (see Ga. laws, 1919, p. 242). Section 5, of Article 3 of this act (see page 246), reads as follows:

"'Sec. 5. The state highway board shall have an attorney to represent said board in all matters, both at law and in equity, that may arise; to advise said board in all matters affecting the proper discharge of their duties in the maintenance, improvement and construction of the system of state-aid roads herein provided; and to represent said board in acquiring and condemning property for right of way, and generally to do and perform every act and thing of a legal nature required by said board. The attorney for said highway board shall not be less than 35 years of age, and shall have practiced law in the state of Georgia not less than 10 years, and be of good moral character, and shall be appointed by the governor of this state for a term of 2 years, and whose appointment shall be confirmed by the senate, and such attorney shall maintain his office at the seat of the general offices of the state highway board, such attorney to hold office until his successor is appointed and qualified, and who shall receive an annual salary of $4,200.'

"By an act of the general assembly approved August 21, 1922 (see Ga. laws, 1922, pp. 115 to 117 both inclusive), the provision of law last above quoted, authorizing the employment of an attorney, was repealed. By an examination of the caption of this act, you will find that, among other things, it sets forth the purpose of the act to amend the original act of 1919, 'by striking section five (5) of article three (3) of said act, which provides for an attorney for the state highway board, and substituting in lieu thereof a new section to be known as section five (5).' In the body of this act, the act of 1919 is amended 'by striking section five (5) of article three (3) of said act, and substituting in lieu thereof the following to wit: 'Section five (5). The state highway department is authorized to ascertain and determine the maximum load or weight that can, with safety, be transported over any bridge and its approaches on the state-aid road. The county authorities in each county of this state shall have similar power with respect to any bridge and its approaches within such county not state-aid roads. The state highway department and the county authorities, respectively, shall be authorized to post on any such bridge a legible notice showing the maximum amount which has been so ascertained such bridge or its approaches can carry with safety, and any person hauling, driving or otherwise bringing on any such bridge or its approaches any load or weight exceeding the rated capacity so ascertained and posted, shall do so at their own risk, and neither the state nor county shall be liable for any damages to persons or property that may result therefrom. And it shall be unlawful for any person to haul, drive or otherwise bring on such bridge or its approaches, any load or weight exceeding the rated capacity so ascertained and posted."

"Since the repeal of the provisions of the act authorizing the employment of an attorney for the board, there has been no further provision of law enacted authorizing such employment. The highway board, however, in the face of the repeal of that part of the act giving authority to employ an attorney, has continued such employment at an annual salary of at least $4,200, and paid out of the funds of the highway department more than $21,000 for such services without authority of law.

"Article 3, section 3, paragraph 2, of the original highway act of 1919, p. 245, reads as follows:

"'Paragraph 2. That the state highway engineer shall sit with the state highway board in the transaction of business, but shall have no vote; and that he shall act as the executor of the general orders and policies of the said board, and be the executive head of the staff of engineering and office employees, with power to employ and discharge the members of said staff, with or without cause.'

"By the act of the general assembly approved August 21, 1922 (see Ga. Laws, 1922, p. 117), this section of the original act last above quoted was amended by adding thereto the following:

"'Sec. 2. Amend Georgia highway laws, acts of the general assembly, 1919, by adding the following provision to article 3, section 3, paragraph 2:

"'Provided, further, the state highway board shall determine the number of employees, designate their place of labor, prescribe their duties, fix their compensation, and also the salary of the chairman (including the year 1922) who shall devote all of his time and attention to the discharge of the duties of his office, who shall represent the board and is vested with all the power and authority of same when not in session. No person shall be appointed to or discharged from any position in the state highway department without the approval of the board, or when it is not in session by the chairman.'

"This amendment gave to the highway board the right to fix the salary of the chairman thereof, gave to the chairman of the board the right to exercise all the power and authority of the board when it was not in session, took away from the highway engineer the power to employ or discharge the members of his staff with or without cause, without the approval of the board, or of the chairman of the board when the board was not in session.

"Midnight Amendment."

"This last amendment is what is generally known in Georgia as 'the 'Midnight Amendment,' which is reported to have found its way into this act by some hook or crook, principally crook, without the vote or knowledge of the members of the general assembly.

"By an act approved August 27, 1925 (see Ga. Laws, 1925, pp. 208 to 211, both inclusive) the original highway act of 1919, as subsequently amended, was further amended, as follows:

"'Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, that the above recited act defined in the caption hereof be and the same is hereby amended by striking all of paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4 of Section 3 and Article 3, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

So that said section when amended shall read as follows: "The said board shall employ a state highway engineer, who shall be a competent civil engineer, qualified by technical training as well as practical construction experience in highway work. The engineer shall hold office during the pleasure of the board. He shall be allowed his necessary traveling expenses incurred in the performance of his duties while traveling in the state of Georgia without the county of Fulton, and without the state of Georgia, provided that before incurring any traveling expenses for trips outside the state of Georgia, he shall have the written direction of the highway board to incur such expense, which written direction shall be recorded on the minutes of said board before incurring such expense. Said board shall prescribe and fix the duties of the engineer, and shall provide the engineer with offices and sufficient equipment to discharge his duties as prescribed by the state highway board and this act. The board shall employ such other engineers, clerks, and assistants as may be needed, and at such salaries and for such terms as appear necessary, and prescribe and fix under this act."'

"By this last amendment, paragraph 2, of section 3, of article 3 of this act of 1919, as amended by the act of 1922 as hereinbefore set forth, was repealed.

"In this effort of John Holder to get an act through the general assembly completely stripping the highway engineer of any authority whatever to employ or discharge employees in his department, or to sit with the board during its deliberations, he, or whoever drew this bill for him, evidently overlooked the fact that the 'Midnight Amendment' became a part of paragraph 2, of section 3, article 3, and was thereby repealed, leaving him with only his $10 per day while the board is actually in session, as fixed by the original act, and stripping him of a large amount of the authority previously vested in him.

"Of course the issues made in the recent campaign for governor are still fresh in the minds of the people, as are also your efforts to carry out the wishes of the people in submitting various names to the state senate for chairman of the highway board and for their confirmation. The fact is also still ringing in the ears of the people that Mr. Holder organized his forces, and prevented any confirmation of your appointment of his successor, and will continue to hold the office in this technical way.

"In view of all these facts, he has no just right of complaint if he is required to live up to the letter of the law governing this department as it now stands on the statute books.

"I respectfully ask that you, as governor of this state, by virtue of the authority vested in you as such, refer this matter to the attorney general, and take such steps as are necessary to recover the salaries herein referred to which have been illegally drawn from the public funds, and that you also take such steps as are necessary to prevent the payment of such salaries in the future, and to prevent the chairman of the highway board from exercising any authority other than that vested in him by the provisions of the law herein set forth."

$500,000 in Dairy Cattle At Southeastern Fair

Emphasizing the value of raising the best dairy cattle possible, officials of the Southeastern fair have received entry blanks for more than 500 head of cattle which will be on exhibit today and the remainder of the week at Lakewood, as a special feature of the Southeastern fair national hog and cattle show.

Cows valued at more than a half million dollars, from the largest and best known dairy farms in the United States, in addition to the large number of southern entries, arrived Sunday morning in two special trains and will be ready for exhibit this morning.

Judge John S. Candler, chairman of the cattle and swine department of the fair, stated Sunday that the show at the Southeastern fair this week, without a doubt, will be one of the most elaborate of any in the United States and certainly the largest ever held in the south. It is possibly due to the fact that the national dairy show will be held in Memphis, a few days after the close of the fair here and many of the larger herdsmen of the north, enroute to Tennessee, have stopped over here for the week and will exhibit their best stock.

Famous Guernseys.

A large herd of dairy cows from the famous Penny Brothers farm, of Hopewell, N. Y., valued at more than $125,000, arrived Sunday and will be on exhibit today. It is the largest Guernsey herd in the United States and one of the largest in the world. The stock is from a long line of pedigreed and registered cattle and will be in charge of James E. Dodge, of New York, said to be the greatest judge of good cattle in America.

Another prominent farm represented here is the famous Gay[illegible] from near Memphis, wh[illegible] milk for practically all o[illegible] in Memphis. The Gayose [illegible] taken many prizes at the S[illegible] Eastern fair in the past and thei[illegible] this year is valued at more tha[illegible],000.

J. L. McIntosh, of Be[illegible]ttsville, S. C., C. H. McCall, of Ches[illegible], S. C., and the other out-of-state en[illegible]s, with Dr. L. C. Fischer of the Davi[illegible] Fischer sanatorium, from Fulton county, the Miley Bright Guernsey farms from DeKalb county and a large Guernsey bull owned by the city of Atlanta, are among others entered in the show.

Special attention will be given to the boys' calf clubs. Several thousand dollars worth of calves are on the grounds and ready for public inspection. Large herds of calves from Spalding, Newton, Troupe, Clarke and Cobb counties are entered.

The Guernsey is not the only breed entered, for several large Ayrshire, Holestein and Jersey he[illegible] arrived Sunday and will be on exh[illegible]

Jersey Entries.

Prominent among the Jersey entries are the Berry Schools, of Rome, Ga.; the famous Jersey Inland farms, from Columbus, Ga.; the Hardman farms from Commerce, Ga.; the McPherson farms from Athens; the Bonnell farms, the Black Mar farms, from Columbus, and the famous Pebble Hill farm from Thomasville, Ga.

Judging in the cattle and swine department will not start until Tuesday morning, it was stated Sunday. Judge Candler will have as his assistants T. G. Chastain, vice chairman; W. T. Bennett, superintendent, and E. P. McGee, assistant superintendent, in the cattle and swine department.

And now October has arrived—demanding a complete change from summer apparel to the weights more suited to Autumn.

WAR IN GROCERY TRADE IS ENDED

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—The trade war between a group of wholesale grocery jobbers and cash-and-carry jobbers and chain stores has been brought to an end by voluntary agreement of the defendants to cease the practices complained of, the federal trade commission announced today.

The grocery jobbers, the commission said, have signed an agreement to quit boycotting the cash-and-carry jobbers and the chain stores and to permit them to obtain goods in any market they choose.

While the commission declined to disclose the identity of the concerns, it stated that other cases had been similarly settled by mutual agreement in line with the commission's policy of aiding self-regulation in business.

The others were described as manufacturers of women's and men's wear which they had been advertising as "silk," when as a matter of fact it was not the product of the silk worm; a cigar-manufacturer who had been advertising his products as of Cuban and Havana blend when they were not made from tobacco from the island of Cuba, and a seed merchant who claimed to be the "exclusive producer" when he was buying the seed and reselling them.

diate member of his family in the city at the time, was the first to give the alarm. She was prostrated tonight by the tragedy, which came as a double catastrophe because Governor Peay was believed to be improving rapidly following a similar illness in February which almost ended in his death.

Governor Peay never spoke after the initial attack, which came as he lay in his room, taking an afternoon nap after a meal at which he was "every bit himself," according to servants.

Doctor Is Summoned.

His groans and heavy breathing suddenly attracted Mrs. Peay's attention. She hurriedly summoned aid, and Dr. Frank Fessey, who attended Governor Peay during his first serious illness, and who had been in constant supervision over him since, was among the first to reach the mansion.

Only a few weeks ago Governor Peay, taking cognizance of published charges that he was seeking the vice presidential nomination on a "Smith and Peay" ticket, announced retirement from politics during the next two years, at least. He made it plain, however, that he was not "retiring permanently."

He said definitely on that occasion that he would not run for United States senator under any consideration. He had promised voters during his last campaign he would not aspire to a senator's position from the gubernatorial chair.

Sermon Caused Public Career.

The inspiration which sent Governor Peay into public life and made him chief executive three consecutive times, was contained in a sermon by Rev. John O. Rust.

"One can do anything in two years," was a thought that the Clarksville attorney incorporated in the development of his career. His ambition was aroused to become governor and to "put efficiency into the administration of affairs." His final term was sought to round out his comprehensive program.

Financial problems keenly interested him, and his library was stocked with volumes on such subjects. How successful he was in the application of his theories to state government was a point bitterly contested during partisan strife which characterized particularly the closing years of his administration.

Governor Peay, known to his intimates as a timid individual in his youth, carried to the executive chair a self-possession and dignity which earned him the designation of a "governor of the old school." He was nevertheless bold and frank in his public utterances, and during the waning days of the 1927 legislative session, his verbal assaults on the recalcitrant elements were unsparing.

Promises Pardon.

As an instance, when the session was prolonged past its normal day of conclusion by opponents who feared that certain measures would be allowed to die on his desk without recourse, Governor Peay urged them to "go home," and when it was ruled that his own adherers, who were trying to break quorums and dissolve the session, might be returned to the capitol under arrest, he announced that he would pardon any legislator prosecuted under this power.

The governor's last term was also featured by a battle over a so-called "bonus" of $750, which the legislature voted over his wishes to each member. Failing to kill the bonus by a veto, he filed suit as a taxpayer in the courts to stop payment. The case was scheduled to be argued before the supreme court this month.

Keenly interested in road building, Governor Peay endeavored to build up highways through a "pay-as-you-go" plan, which attracted considerable outside attention. He was forced, however, to supplement this program through bond issues this year.

Anti-Evolution Bill.

The measure which earned him national prominence was the famous anti-evolution bill. Though Governor Peay had no special part in securing its passage he warmly defended it against subsequent attacks.

A reorganization bill, which completely changed the structure of state departments, an eight-months school term bill, support of which was derived from tobacco taxation, and the Smoky Mountains park bill, which he actively sponsored, were among the achievements of his administration.

Another "fight" which he did not live to see finished was an effort to regulate the price of gasoline and prohibit alleged rebates through a state bureau, with appeals provided for to the courts. This was ruled unconstitutional in federal district court, but the state appealed to the United States supreme court.

Second Illness.

It was the second time this year his life had been threatened by sudden ailments. Previously an attack of pneumonia had weakened his system and left him prey to a heart attack. His life was despaired of, but he recovered and was apparently in the best of condition several days ago.

During the interim he had made several trips in search of health, once to Florida and once more recently to Roanoke, Va., and Washington.

Governor Peay's first attack came during the legislature's convention, and a recess was declared in midsession. The crisis passed, he regained strength, and returned to his desk. The closing days of the legislature found him burdened with an overwhelming amount of detail work, however, to which was added a hectic period of strife with anti-administration forces.

Governor Peay's Virginia trip was not thought to have aided him materially, but after his return, under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Peay, Dr. Frank Fessey and other friends and relatives, the governor had devoted himself less strenuously to work and appeared to be improving considerably.

Only Friday, at which time Governor Peay spent an entire day in studying the case of, and interviewing, a condemned man, to whom he granted a 30-day reprieve, newspapermen and friends took occasion to compliment him on his physical appearance, and the governor replied that he had never felt better.

Sketch of Peay.

Austin Peay was the only governor of his generation to be elected for a third term and was the first chief executive of Tennessee to die while in office. He was born in Christian county, Kentucky, June 1, 1876. His father was a prosperous land owner and a Confederate veteran. His mother, Mrs. Cornelia Leavell Peay, was a descendant of a prominent family.

Young Peay attended the public schools of Christian county and later was a student at Washington and Lee university. He was graduated from Centre college, Danville, Ky., in 1895. Less than a year later he was admitted to the bar and began practicing law. Following his marriage to Miss Sallie Hurst, of Clarksville, Tenn., he removed there where he maintained a residence the rest of his life.

When he was 25 years old, Peay was elected from Clarksville and Montgomery county to the lower house of the Tennessee legislature. He was not a candidate for reelection. That was the only elective office he has ever held other than that of governor.

Elected Governor.

Peay was chosen as chairman of the state democratic executive committee in 1908. Ten years later he was defeated in his race for the democratic nomination for governor by A. H. Roberts. In 1922 he won the gubernatorial nomination from Benton McMillin, a former governor, and Harvey Hannah, for many years an outstanding figure in Tennessee politics. He conquered his republican opponent, Alf A. Taylor, the incumbent, in the general election.

Two years later Governor Peay was nominated to succeed himself by an overwhelming majority over Dr. John R. Neal, of Rhea Springs. Captain T. F. Peck, the republican nominee for governor in 1924, was unable to beat Governor Peay at the polls.

Hill McAllister, at that time state treasurer, and Dr. Neal opposed Governor Peay in his race for third term nomination in 1926. The incumbent obtained a plurality of more than 8,000 votes over McAllister, the runner-up. A few months later, Governor Peay was given a huge majority over Walter White, the republican nominee.

Evolution Bill.

Governor Peay attained national prominence by signing a bill passed by the Tennessee general assembly of 1925 which prohibited teaching of the theory of evolution in public schools. He also took an active interest in the legal battle which resulted in the law being declared constitutional by the Tennessee supreme court.

In his public utterances during the trial at Dayton of Professor John T. Scopes, convicted of violating the statute, Governor Peay upheld the argument of the fundamentalists in the religious controversy.

During his third term, Governor Peay reorganized the state government, eliminating numerous bureaus and departments. Another outstanding achievement of his career as governor was the passage at his insistence by the 1925 legislature of a bill authorizing collection of a 10 per cent sales tax on tobacco. This law was made permanent by the 1927 legislature after the chief executive had urged such action. It produces more than $1,200,000 annually, all of which is used for educational purposes.

The governor is survived by his widow; a son, Austin Peay, Jr., a student at the University of Tennessee; a daughter, Mrs. A. P. L. Armstrong, of Memphis, Tenn., and two sisters, Mrs. George W. Leavell, wife of a medical missionary to China, and Mrs. E. M. Cary, of Clarksville.

The governor was a member of the Baptist church. He was recognized as the most wealthy resident of Montgomery county.

NEW TENNESSEE HEAD FORMER ALABAMAN.

Nashville, Tenn., October 2.—(AP)—Henry H. Horton, of Marshall, democrat, successor to Austin Peay as Tennessee's chief executive, is the first man in the history of the state to wear the gubernatorial mantle through the death of his superior. As speaker of the state senate at the time of Governor Peay's death, Horton, under the constitution and laws of the state, acceded to the governorship.

He will serve the year and three months of the unexpired term without necessity of general election.

The new governor is a native of Alabama, born in Jackson county, February 17, 1866. His father, the Rev. Henry H. Horton, a Baptist minister, was a Tennessean and his mother, Elizabeth Moore Horton, the noted Irish poet.

Senator Horton was married in 1898 to Miss Adeline Wilhoit, a daughter of John B. Wilhoit, an extensive land owner in Marshall county.

Matriculating at Scott academy, Scottsboro, Ala., at the age of 18, young Horton remained there for two years, later becoming a teacher in the schools at Madison, Ala., He was graduated from Winchester college, Winchester, Tenn., in 1888.

Teaches in Texas.

Then he went to Hillsboro, Texas. A year's service in teaching in the public school there found him longing for the atmosphere of Tennessee and he returned to Winchester college as an instructor in 1890.

Honors in the collegiate world came thick and fast for the youthful pedagogue. He was chosen as treasurer of his alma mater and at the same time placed at the head of its department of science.

Not content with his training he went to the University of the South at Sewanee and took a special course. Feeling that he was better equipped for his work as instructor, he returned to Winchester and resumed his duties at the institution from which he had graduated five years before.

Having studied law, Senator Horton decided in 1894 that he would turn his attention to active practice and in the summer of 1895 he was admitted to the bar in Franklin county.

Leaving Winchester in 1911 Horton abandoned for a time his legal pursuits and took charge of a large farm in Marshall county considered one of the best pieces of agricultural property in middle Tennessee. He still owns the broad acres.

Serves in Legislature.

Up until this time Horton, though always taking an interest in political affairs, had never sought public office. His first venture was successful and he was chosen in 1907 to represent Franklin county in the lower house of the general assembly. However, he was a one-termer, not standing for reelection.

Later he served as a school commissioner in his county and for two terms was a member of board of aldermen at Winchester. Always interested in the business affairs of his adopted town, Horton was a director of the Home Bank of Winchester over a period of 33 years.

In the November elections Horton was elected to represent Marshall and Lincoln counties in the state senate and in the organization of that body the first of the year was chosen speaker over Senator W. A. Hensle, of Putnam county.

Governor Peay had few warmer friends than the man who succeeds him. They were not only political allies but there existed between them a real bond of companionship.

Constitution's "Ancient Auto" Parade

Will Pass Through City at Noon Today

Here's an old-timer for the "ancient car" parade today. It's a 1916 Paige, which has run 121,000 miles and is declared to be still in excellent condition. It is the property of Dr. McLeod, and the Paige Company of Georgia is sponsoring its appearance in the procession of antiquated vehicles.

A fantastic sight greeted Peachtree throngs about thirty years ago. It was a carriage that roll.' without a horse.

Today an equally interesting occurrence will excite attention when The Constitution's "old auto" parade moves down the histor'. street again from a North avenue starting point.

With the rapid advance of mechanics, it is hard to realize that there was a day when four-wheel brakes, balloon tires and other modern innovations were as unheard of as non-stop flights and flapper bandits.

Many old-timers will have to rack their memories to recall the day when they cranked the "bus" alongside the running board, and mounted a high seat with a prayer on their lips and a fire extinguisher at hand.

From North avenue and Peachtree the parade will move at noon down Peachtree and Whitehall to Trinity avenue, and thence back down Forsyth to the starting place again.

The show of antiquated automobiles will be put on its conjunction with a super-film, "The First Automobile," which opens for . week's run at the Metropolitan theater.

Barney Oldfield, former race-track hero, will star alongside Patsy Ruth Miller, one of Hollywood's most talented performers.

The Atlanta man and woman who can establish their claim to have driven the first automobile on downtown streets will be presented a ten-dollar gold piece by The Constitution. The Metropolitan theater management will judge whose claim has priority.

CORPORAL TANNER, VETERAN OF UNION ARMIES, IS DEAD

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—James Tanner, known as Corporal Tanner since his serivce with the Union army, died here tonight in his eighty-third year. Legless as a result of wounds received in the second battle of Bull Run, Tanner achieved note in political and legal circles in his later years. At his death he was registrar of wills for the District of Columbia.

He was active in the presidential campaign of Banjamin Harrison, and during Harrison's administration he was commissioner of pensions for a time, resigning when the president disapproved of his liberal policy toward war veterans.

Walker 'Shadowing' In Europe Charged To U. S. Source

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, October 2.—Persistent reports that Mayor James J. Walker, during his recent holiday tour of Europe, was subjected to the constant espionage of men believed to have been United States government agents, led friends of the mayor today to plan to request an official investigation of the Washington authorities into the matter.

If the reports should be verified, it was said, an attempt would be made to learn who directed that the mayor be kept under surveillance.

Stories that Walker had been "shadowed" from the time he left New York city have been current among his friends ever since his return. The mayor was said to have been informed of this alleged espionage by half a dozen persons, his first informant having been an Englishman of title and high position, and the last a man holding an official position in Paris.

This information was so direct that friends of the mayor are said to have spoken to the Paris police about the matter and to have been informed that the mayor was being "shadowed" by private detectives said to be in the employ of American officials. The Paris police were said to have sent word to Mayor Walker that French detectives had been assigned to watch those who were spying upon the mayor.

Neither Mayor Walker nor any of those who accompanied him to Europe would discuss the report, but it was learned that some of the mayor's companions credited it and believed that the espionage had been undertaken in the hope that the agents might learn something discreditable that could be used against the mayor. Exactly how they hoped to accomplish this was not disclosed but some of the mayor's friends said they suspected possible attempts at a "frame up."

It was the belief of some of the mayor's associates that any attempt to discredit Mayor Walker would be for the purpose of casting discredit on Tammany, the political organization of which both he and Governor Al Smith are members, and thus discrediting indirectly Governor Smith as a candidate for president.

FAMILY OF FIVE DIE IN FLAMES

Boston, October 2.—(United News.) A family of five died in a tenement house fire early Sunday and another family of six was saved by a hair-raising rescue in which the father and mother risked their lives for the children.

Awakened by smoke and the heat of the rapidly encroaching flames, James E. Packham, his wife and their four children, found themselves trapped on the fourth floor with every stairway aflame and heavy clouds of smoke rolling into their apartment.

Packham heroically swung out of the fourth-floor window and grasping a ventilating pipe pulled himself to an adjoining roof. He then called to his wife to hand him the children. By leaning far out Mrs. Packham was able to swing the children far enough for her husband to seize and lift them to the roof beside him.

After the children had been rescued, Packham succeeded in helping his wife across the same chasm. Firemen found them shortly afterward in a state of collapse and carried them down ladders to safety.

The five who lost their lives were trapped in their beds and were suffocated by smoke before the flames reached them, in the opinion of Medical Examiner Timothy Leary. The mother had managed to leave her bed with an infant clasped to her bosom, but collapsed in the next room. The dead are Peter Hamaty, his wife, and three children.

Fifteen persons were saved by firemen from the burning building. One man was rescued as he clung by his finger tips from a flame-licked sill on the third floor.

Doctors To Meet.

Greer, S. C., October 2.—(AP)—About 150 physicians are expected to attend the meeting of the Fourth District Medical society to be held here Tuesday. The meeting will be called to order at 10 a. m. by the president, Dr. J. N. Nesbit, of Gaffney.

It's fun to shop with Sally!

"SHOP" is scarcely the word to say—she's so assured and jaunty about it. You love to go along. Her clothes are quite the thing as she swings expectantly down the street. Her complexion is young, lovely. And so eager, alert, is her gay, clean mind that into this shop she hastens, then out with a bundle. Into that shop, then out with another. "Yes, this is the right cold cream," selecting the simplest of two jars—the white, fluffy insides looking alike, equally fragrant. You'd think her rather casual about her purchases, till home again she unwraps the finest powder money can buy. The cake of soap kindest for Sally's skin. Sheer chiffon hose of wonderful wear. And they prove the finest powder, kindest soap, longest wearing sheer hose.

Every shop trip Sally makes is a triumphant adventure. Out of magazines and newspapers she gathers the news that means getting what she wants, in the style and quality she wants it, at a price it is right to expect to pay. She never wishes after she's bought one thing that she'd considered longer and bought another. For Sally is sure. She has faith in her own good judgment and taste. Her choice comes from an easy, happy survey of all that is buyable.

PASSING OF JUDGE HILLYER.

The death of Judge George Hillyer invokes public sorrow that will be expressed throughout city and state.

Living to the ripe old age of ninety-three years, he remained in working harness long after he passed his "three score and ten," and until a few months ago took a lively interest in public affairs.

Judge Hillyer's ancestral strains ordained him to high aspirations and to the accomplishment of the ends he achieved.

Classically educated, trained to the law, early drafted into politics and legislation, tired to and hardened by soldier service, exalted to judicial functions, and then to municipal and state administrative posts, he stood out among his colleagues as a model citizen and public servitor.

Men in the present activities of service and power may highly profit by reading the record he leaves open to their emulation and young men longing for careers of preferment and distinction may learn from the story of his life how to insure both by clean living and candid characters.

Few, if any, have lived among us whose democratic conduct, whose moral balance, whose cooperative sympathies and unselfish dedication to the public good were so conspicuous and esteemed as Judge Hillyer's. He was an alert and loyal citizen; an able and trustworthy official; a Christian son, husband and father; a zealot to his church and a patriot to his country. They are not many in any generation who win the title to so comprehensive an epitaph.

The people of his city held him in high honor and will remember with reverence his spotless character, his acute humanity as judge and administrator, and as one who illustrated the beauty and value of a faith anchored to the rocks of eternal truth and that held fast to life's victorious end.

GET TO WORK—NOW!

The city bond money is now available, not only for viaduct construction, but for all of the projects named in the program for which bonds were voted.

The thing to do now is to get to work!

The delay that has ensued since the voters of the city overwhelmingly indorsed the improvement program nearly two years ago has cost the city many thousands of dollars.

The summer of 1927, which is now happily at an end, has been a generally dull one; if the city work could have started promptly as intended, business would have been much more active.

But that is water over the wheel.

There is no barrier now in the way. There is no litigation to further delay action.

What the people want now is action.

They have been surfeited with talks and arguments and controversies—many of them over trivial matters—until they are sick and tired of them. Work should begin at once not only on viaduct construction but on all the improvements contemplated by the bond issue.

When this is done Atlanta will take on new business life.

There is a general condition of propserity in Georgia.

Business is feeling it, and the only thing lacking in Atlanta is the beginning of activity in its own improvement program.

We heard over the radio the other evening that in other days the women wore their dresses down to their insteps and now they wear them up to their step-ins!

WHY AN EXTRA SESSION?

The fact that Senator H. H. Elders, who was one of the leaders of the insurgent group in the last assembly, now urges a special session to discuss and act upon tax reform, school betterment and a new highway program will not, it is hoped, influence Governor Hardman to call such a session.

The governor has nothing to retract. He did his duty as he viewed it. He made appointments, as was his right, that were not confirmed. Whether the senate group that blocked confirmation had reasonable grounds against the appointees or merely intended to embarrass the executive, does not matter. The record stands.

The next regular session of the assembly will meet in June, 1929.

Until that time there is, as seen at the present moment, no excuse for an extra session.

THE DEATH OF GOV. PEAY.

The death last night of Governor Austin Peay, of Tennessee, will carry shock and sorrow to the people of his state, to his colleagues in executive offices throughout the nation, and to millions of people to whom his admirable character and public services have endeared him.

Conspicuous through the qualities of manhood and statesmanship that caused his people to elect him three times successively to the governorship—an unprecedented honor in the Volunteer state—he attracted the study and approval of masters of statecraft by the wisdom, probity and progressiveness of his executive career.

Governor Peay was Kentucky born in the same locality and from the same citizenship as Jefferson Davis, but became an ardent Tennesseean in his young manhood and was easily accorded public recognition and honors as a true and inflexible disciple of Andrew Jackson democracy.

His passing thus suddenly from life and official activities will be the occasion of a widespread sorrow over the state that he served so faithfully and benefited so signally.

THE ART EXHIBIT.

Atlanta's greatest art exhibit is now open at the High museum. There are approximately 200 paintings, etchings and works of sculpture.

Many of the most famous artists in America are present to talk daily on art and kindred subjects.

Atlanta has become a cultural center. It has taken a more advanced position in music, art, drama, writing and other of the cultural arts, than any city of its size, perhaps, in this country.

The people of Atlanta, therefore, should support and in every way possible encourage these annual art exhibits.

Mrs. High did a splendid service in turning over her magnificent home on Peachtree for a permanent "art home."

Mr. Payne and others who are devoting so much time to this branch of culture deserve commendation.

Art, whether in painting, or water color, or etching, or decoration or sculpture, is one of the finer cultures. It broadens conceptions. It inspires a love for the beautiful.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS SHOW.

The first business show in the south will be held in the city auditorium from this day, Monday, October 3, to the 8th, inclusive.

It will be a display by which the southern business man can compare machines for solving business problems — new systems, ideas, equipment, improvements and short cuts in business methods.

Specialists and experts will be at the show to demonstrate and explain.

It is to be a high-powered educational display, and one in which every business man and woman will find genuine interest, and will be benefited as well.

Only four other cities in the United States have these business shows. They are New York, Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco.

The inauguration of such a show in Atlanta ought to attract widespread attention, for it is to be more than a mere exposition of business systems. It is to be in reality a business university, for the lessons to be learned will be of the nature of professional training by masters in their professions.

It is none of our business, but if Secretary Wilbur would ask us how to run the navy we would consider the hundreds of boats rotting away and ask him to create a sinking fund.

The appointments in The Constitution's model home are so perfect that it will tend to keep the entire family in nights—a model home, per se.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE FATAL WEDDING.

A correspondent contributes the synopsis:

"I have been called a hard-hearted mother by a young man. Perhaps I shouldn't call him a man, for in my estimation he was a young fool. Three years ago my daughter developed tuberculosis. I thought her work had a good deal to do with it. She entered the ——— sanitarium and got along remarkably well, was discharged and knew just how to take care of herself. But this young man here enters the scene. She became engaged to him. Four good physicians advised her not to marry. I sent the young man to two of the physicians. I did all in my power to prevent or postpone the marriage. But the young man told me he loved her too well to give her up, and I told him that if he loved her half as much as I did, he would be willing to wait, for her sake. The doctors said she had every chance of complete recovery, but they feared marriage would prove disastrous. They married. It lasted 13 months, and three weeks ago she was buried. My son-in-law was advised by the doctors to be examined every three months for two years to come. He probably will not do so, but I have another younger child at home and for his benefit I would like your advice. Should he undergo examinations by the doctor? We had my daughter at home in the last months of her illness and of course her brother spent considerable time with her."

Any one, especially a young person, who has lived with or been a companion of or a fellow workman of a sufferer from tuberculosis, ought to give himself the benefit of medical examinations at regular intervals for a period of two years thereafter.

In this sad case the mother was dealing with an instinct that is second only to the instinct of self preservation. Reason, judgment, wisdom, common sense and discretion can seldom prevail against the blind action of a human being impelled by the instinct of race perpetuation, if that individual's education has not been very good.

Another disease too often contributed to the foundation of the home by unwise marriages is gonorrhea. Not so fatal as syphilis, but the cause of much unhappiness, many mutilating operations on the mothers of one child or none, and a large part of the sterility of men. It is a horrible fact, but a fact that it is unfair to suppress, that many men today marry although they have this disease in a communicable form, not the riffraff, merely, but men in every walk of life.

And still there is a perfectly proper and reasonably practicable way that these fatal weddings may be prevented. Indeed it is the duty of every true parent or guardian of a marriageable girl to expect as a matter of course a health certificate from a reputable physician, and to exact this if necessary from any man—no matter who or what he may be—who proposes marriage. It cannot be fairly argued that the prospective bride should be required to furnish such a certificate, because, as wicked as the world is today, we still have chivalry in it. The double standard of morals places the onus squarely on the shoulders of the double dealing sex. So I repeat it is up to the prospective bridegroom to obtain a certificate from a reputable physician that he is free from communicable disease and present this certificate as a matter of course when he seeks consent to marry.

If this reasonable and practicable plan were adopted as a matter of form or custom, unquestionably, undebatedly, many thousands of homes would be saved from ruin.

RECALL OF RAKOVSKY EXPECTED THIS WEEK

Paris, October 2.—(AP)—The recall of M. Rakovsky, soviet ambassador to France, by the Moscow government, is regarded here in semi-official circles as likely to take place during the week. This follows upon the presentation to M. Tchitcherin, soviet foreign minister, yesterday, of a note drafted by the council of ministers at Rambouillet Friday. It is insisted in Paris, however, that no rupture with Moscow is desired, the Rakovsky affair being a personal one, since he now is persona non grata.

Nevertheless it is feared that the negotiations for the settlement of Russia's pre-war debt to France, begun by M. Rakovsky, will be abandoned and that new negotiations must be initiated by direct dealings between the two governments.

(M. Rakovsky is charged by the French government with having interfered in the internal affairs of France by inciting workers to rebel against the bourgeois governments and calling upon soldiers to disobey their chiefs.)

DAYLIGHT HOLDUPS FEATURE SUNDAY POLICE RECORDS

Two audacious daylight holdups were reported to local police Sunday, while petty burglars were also busy over the week-end.

"Stick 'em up," said a pair of negroes to R. E. Davison, 390 Piedmont avenue. He complied. The highwaymen then rifled his pockets of $3, a fountain pen and personal effects. Detectives were not told where the robbery occurred.

A colored excursionist from Macon, his pockets filled with 54 dollar bills, was likewise relieved of his currency, together with an odd assortment of jewelery. In reporting the depredation to city detectives, Robert Bowman said that he was going back to Macon.

Burglars who shattered a glass door at the Hopkins Auto and Equipment company, 418 West Peachtree street, were frightened off before they could avail themselves of the entry, police records show.

Jack Snider, negro, was arrested early Sunday in the vicinity of the Hurt Street Pharmacy by police investigating a robbery there.

According to Police Lieutenant E. C. Hudson, the suspect had considerable merchandise on his person that had been stolen from the pharmacy. The place had been looted of $10 in cash and a quantity of drug-store wares.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Will King Cotton's Chillun Now Go On a Big Spending Spree?

Reasonably there is much rejoicing abroad in the south over the cotton situation. A conservative estimate of the cash value of this year's crop today over what it promised to be a month ago is $200,000,000. That means a big difference to the cotton raisers between "squeezing through" and having a comfortable income of cash in hand.

Authorities in the cotton market, of New York, predict that the crop, if it agrees with the government estimate, will finally figure up $400,000,000 better than the crop of 1926, but, of course, they do not mean that "the man in the field" will get that much more. Not by a long shot.

The bumper crop of 1926, when its real proportions began to be realized, caused a panicky feeling among supply merchants, brokers, bankers and buyers for the manufacturers. They feared that prices, because of bad labor and mill conditions in the east and in Europe, would go so low as to endanger loans, diminish collections and greatly disturb textile markets. Hence, they pressed the farmers into a rush of early sales and succeeded in forcing 5,000,000 bales out of the hands of the credit farmers when the market price of cotton was upon the lowest level. That spelled big losses to the little fellows.

Present Prospects Not So Bad.

It is already manifest that this year's crop, plus the carry over from last year, will come near to falling below the world consumption demand. That indicates advancing prices until the crop is fully laid down before the world's necessities.

It is neither wise nor helpful to predict bonanza prices to the mass of the cotton farmers. Too many of them are not freemen, but are like hoptoads under the harrows of debt. They will still be the victims of their conditions and can only hope for a measurable betterment of their circumstances. Those, on the other hand, who can figure good profits on present market prices, will probably sell while they think "the selling is good," and feel fine over the fact that they have come out ahead of the weather, the weevil and the writ of foreclosure.

Well and good! The prevalent and all important question is, what will the average farmer do with this unexpected extra price cotton money?

One suspicions southern newspaper expressess the fear that most of them will go into a "spending spree." Easy money brings with it that sort of temptation. During the great inflation of the world war period we saw how that disposition works. Much money seemed to burn the hands of all who got hold of it and they proceeded to spread it broadcast over lands, in stores, in luxuries of the vainest sort. And then the days of the "busted" Prodigal Son descended upon them!

* * * *

The Children of Wisdom.

It is a beneficent providence that has brought the present cotton situation in the south.

If this year's crop brings into the south its prefigured value of $1,300,000,000 that will be scarcely double the mortgage debts now resting upon the 2,000,000 farms in the southern states.

Now, how much of that nearly one and one-third billion dollars will go into the payment of those mortgages?

When I put that question to one of the best informed bankers in the south, he answered: "I very capitally doubt that the present farm mortgages will be reduced 5 per cent from the proceeds of this year's crops."

It does not sound good to hear that statement from one who has had more than a quarter of a century's financial dealings with farmers and those who immediately finance their annual operations.

Taking our case here in Georgia, for instance, the present year's cotton crop is figured to be worth, at current prices, $100,000,000, the farm mortgages in the state call for about $40,000,000. Therefore, the cotton crop alone would pay them off two and a half times!

What a lesson?

That if our cotton crop was only half its size and all surplus, it would pay all our farmers out of debt and leave them $10,000,000 ahead of joyriding.

* * * *

"Lord, Send More Boll-Weevils."

While discussing these matters the other evening at the Henry Grady hotel with a big middle-Georgia farmer who "lives at home and helps to feed his neighbors," he made this amusing confession:

"I used to be a cotton fool myself and belonged for 20 years to the town banker's chaingang, but the boll weevils gnawed me loose and now I am a free man, out of debt, with money to lend! I am a cow, hog and hen magnate now. Oh, yes, I raise some cotton, but the cash I get for it goes into my bank deposits and not to the credit of an interest account. My daily prayer for my farmer friends is, 'Lord send more boll weevils'!"

I imagine he gets back many "amens" to that prayer, but the fact is that underlying his semi-jocular statement is a great truth. That is, that the independence and future prosperity of agriculture here in Georgia will depend upon the general success of the propaganda to convert our farmers to self-support. And that means diversified, intensified, more intelligent and modernized farming, with cotton as a by-product—the surplus crop to measure annually and surely the velvet profits of the farm.

That propaganda must not be allowed to languish and evaporate.

RADIO CONFERENCE DELEGATES READY

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—All the major delegations to the international radiotelegraphic conference which will open here Tuesday were in Washington today. The remainder of the delegates are expected to arrive tomorrow.

The German, British, French, Japanese, Italian and Dutch missions, comprising more than a score of officials, already have organized, while many minor delegations are ready with proposals to present to the conference in an effort to bring up to date the existing radio regulatory convention signed in London in 1912.

President Coolidge will open the congress with an address, to be followed by the dean of the conference, Court Henning Adolf Hamilton, of Sweden. Secretary Hoover, chairman of the American delegation will be nominated president of the conference.

The first business of the session will be a report by Colonel T. F. Purve, chief British delegate, on the administrative management of the radio telegraph section of the international bureau of the telegraph union since the last conference in London.

More than 60 nations and about 50 independent radio operating concerns are expected to be represented at the conference, which is expected to establish uniform international wireless regulations designed to protect the public interest, to prevent discrimination among users, to assure the secrecy of messages, and to allocate international frequencies to prevent interference.

Ottawa Girl Added To Carnival Group Of Smuggled Aliens

Uncle Sam's week-end house party at the local bastile was enlivened Sunday night by the arrival of another guest, comely 19-year-old Gladys Gifford, of Ottawa, Canada, whose advent into the United States was said to have been without the benefit of passport or official sanction.

Miss Gifford told city policemen she joined a carnival in the far north that forthwith entrained for a southward trek.

Emerging from thick folds of canvas one morning last week, the cross-country stowaway beheld the towering skyscrapers of Detroit, her first peek at the United States of America, she said.

The new arrival is the eleventh captive of a Canadian crew here to help the carnival beguile the public at the Southeastern Fair this week.

Immigration officials here are on the trail of some 30 or 40 others, the police say.

Ten were brought to the city jail Saturday night. Among them was a full-blooded Indian by name of Bill (Big Chief) Commander, member of a tribe which roams the Hudson bay country, he told his captives.

All are being held on blanket charges of suspicion pending the outcome of an investigation by federal agents.

LEVINE IS GRANTED AUDIENCE WITH POPE

Rome, October 2.—(AP)—The pope will receive Charles A. Levine, in "semi-private" audience Monday, the Vatican announces.

Levine and his pilot, Captain Walter Hinchcliffe, flew in the monoplane Columbia today from Rome to Naples, enjoying the magnificent panorama in brilliant sunshine and calm weather. When they returned to Rome, Levine exclaimed: "That was the loveliest flight I ever made."

He was handed a letter which contained an invitation for a "special audience" tomorrow with the pontiff. It was addressed to "Aviator Carlos Levine."

Showers Drive St. Louis Folks Out of Homes

St. Louis, October 2.—(United News.)—Evacuation of storm-torn sections of St. Louis began today as additional rains drove hundreds of families from their roofless homes.

Streets leading from the residential areas, wrecked by a five-minute cyclone last Thursday, were lined with trucks and automobiles carrying refugees and their belongings to quarters provided by relief organizations.

The edath list was placed at 86, eight in the tri-cities of Madison, Venice and Granite City across the Mississippi river in Illinois, and the rest in the five-mile area where the twister dipped into St. Louis. Three persons originally listed among the storm dead were found to have died from other causes.

The high winds and torrential rain added to the suffering of the 1,000 families who were rendered homeless by the tornado.

RIVIERA SCENE OF DIZZY RISE IN LAND PRICES

Paris, October 2.—(AP)—Vast land speculation on the Riviera is going on, with prices mounting dizzily, as for example in Juan Les Pins, near Cannes, where Frank Gould is operating. Land here which was selling for 60 cents a square meter eighteen months ago, hardly can be obtained now at thirty dollars. Gould, who appears to have intended to develop a small aristocratic resort, now is contending with problems of expansion far beyond any original idea.

There has been a rush of French land speculators, who, recognizing the possibilities, have bought up and are buying up land much outside of the confines of what was formerly a miniature neighborhood bathing beach. Similar land booms are said to be enveloping Biarritz and San Juan de Luz on the Atlantic coast, as well as Mediterranean resorts.

The Monte Carlo gambling corporation has just doubled its capital for the purpose of extending its grounds and buildings and for reconstruction of the beach, so as to make attractive bathing in the hot season, after the fashion of Lido.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Braddock, Pa.

Why do I feel a desire to be in the mountains or on the seashore when listening to some classical selections of the great masters of music?

Because in many instances the composers who thus affect you found their absorbing themes in nature. There is no doubt, according to competent critics, that Beethoven had close and constant fellowship with her infinitudes, or that some of the motifs of his sonatas and symphonies were born in her vast bosom.

After all, human life is the endeavor to realize the completeness and the harmony of being which visible creation displays. So the mighty spirits of music, like those of poetry, have told us what the heavens say to the earth. They release the tone, the quality, the resonance of that Divine Voice which speaks alike in nature and in man. Hence your desire.

Did Noah actually house two of every creature now extant in the ark, and if the ark was built upon such extensive lines, namely 450 feet in length, 75 feet in width and 45 feet in height, how could the few persons who were passengers on board adequately feed and otherwise care for so vast a cargo as the ark must have carried?

The Genesis account of Noah's ark seems to offer an obstacle to some who wish to credit the Book's accuracy.

What is your interpretation of the entire ark extant?

The dimensions you name would make the ark about as large as a 10,000-ton ocean liner. Its description is a striking example of the vivid word painting of the earlier men who embodied still earlier folklore in their accounts of the Deluge.

Its historic nucleus was probably a disastrous flood in the Euphrates valley. The Biblical writer used the catastrophe to convey a moral lesson which seemed of supreme importance to him. Accordingly he portrayed Noah as the typical believer in God whose faith foresaw and triumphed over the calamity in which the unbelieving and the reckless perished. The details of the narrative are used as the drapery for this teaching and should be understood in the light of its author's purpose. It was a bold stroke of imagination characteristic of the picture thinking of that primitive age.

There is a touch of Dean Swift's inimitable use of incidentals to give his narrative versimilitude in the size of the ark, the living cargo it contained and the windows built into its structure so that its few human occupants might still look to heaven for light and guidance. Get under the Oriental's exterior and you will have less difficulty in discerning the meaning and value of the story.

I am a fundamentalist, dyed in the wool and unashamed, but often a little weary of the harsh and dogmatic note struck by those who think as I do. Can you tell me as a layman which, in your judgment, is the best book I can read on my doctrinal position?

Since you limit me to one volume, I should select that of Dr. Francis L. Patton upon "Fundamental Christianity." Its venerable author reasons in a wise and able way upon the issues at stake. He presents his statements of belief logically and lucidly. The opening section of the book contains a masterly survey of recent theistic speculations. Its treatment of the three-fold authority of history, experience and Holy Scripture is equally notable. The serene and lofty dignity of a matured mind which has achieved a rational faith is reflected on every page.

I often wish I could find the quiet and ease of many people I meet and be as they are. Is this a vain thought?

Not altogether. Yet you must bear your own burdens, fashion your own faith, think your own thoughts and pray your own prayers. Your hopes and aspirations, your romances and ambitions, are an inseparable part of you. Your experience of life is nontransferable. So is that of every other person. In this sense all live and die alone.

In those you desire to emulate the battle you wage yourself is being fought out daily. Should you uncover your mind to them they could tell you a story of shortcomings, lost opportunities, overpowering passions and incapacitating defects which might outdo your own.

Who then can correctly weigh your circumstances, temptations and surrenders or what goes to your good or evil account except the One who shaped you for his Own use and purpose? Make your confessions to that mighty Heart, which comprehends you in perfect love, sympathy and wisdom.

Stoop to conquer. Find your sanctuary of peace and strength of soul by following Him who through suffering and distress entered into His Kingdom, leading our captivities captive.

Church Weddings Becoming Vulgar, Ministers Hold

Chicago, October 2.—Are church weddings becoming more vulgar and pagan?

Is there danger from progressive polygamy and respectable promiscuity?

The views of the Chicago clergy were gathered by the Diocesan, the official magazine of the Chicago Episcopal diocese.

Among those who deplore modern tendencies to vulgar display at weddings are Dr. Norman O. Hutton, rector of St. Chrysostom's church and Dr. Duncan N. Browne, rector of St. James church. These two clergymen, it is stated, have more fashionable weddings in their respective churches than any other Episcopal church in Chicago.

"I think there is a tendency for church weddings today to become vulgar and pagan," says Dr. Hutton. "I invariably recommend simple decorations and no display. No persons contemplating marriage in St. Chrysostom's are allowed to carry out their plans or those of any florist without consultation with the clergy."

"Church weddings do tend to become vulgar and pagan because of over-display," said Dr. Browne. "The service of holy matrimony should be reserved for those who are willing to assume the Christian standard of marriage."

Dr. John Henry Hopkins, Church of the Redeemer:

"Among fashionable people who have but a slender connection with the church, there is too much display. The American home is being attacked today as never before. There is more unsettlement of homes among young people during the past few years than in the previous 15 years."

Chiefs of Union Labor Hail Change in Trend Of U. S. Public Opinion

Report Heralds 5-Day Week as End Toward Which Some May Strive Directly.

Los Angeles, October 2.—(AP)—A definite change of public opinion toward labor unions and evidence of organization healthiness on the face of settlement of jurisdictional disputes, were reported by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today in its annual pre-convention report.

Labor's new goal—the five-day week—set last year, was characterized as an end toward which some unions might strive directly while others still have intermediate goals to reach.

Setting out as labor's primary objective the increasing of wages and shortening of hours of work, the report says, unions generally have been successful during the last year in provoking wage reductions, while quite a number have obtained wage increases.

Total membership in the federation was given as 2,812,407 for 1927 as compared with the record in 1920 or 4,978,740.

Regarding the trend of public opinion toward its unions, the report says that many employers and much of the general public "are beginning to see that the union is not simply a militant organization with no interest in work itself, but that in addition to its militant functions the union is the agency through which the workers can make their fullest contribution to industry and society."

Organized labor has made fewer hours of work one of its fundamental goals, so that wage earners might have more opportunities for recreation and other healthful pursuits the report says.

Evidence of the healthy condition of the federation is had in the settlement of a number of jurisdictional disputes. "The development of these disputes is inevitable in the progress and expansion of trade union growth and activity; ability to find an adjustment is indicative of adaptability that is growth," it says.

Educational Work.

Educational work is progressing through many channels. The report explains the purposes of this activity by declaring that "since trade unions depend upon voluntary methods for progress, trade unionists must be in a position to decide their problems wisely."

An outstanding success of federation workers during the past year was stated to be the successful defeating of plans of communists to get control of trade unions. "We believe there can be no compromise with communists because their purpose is the destruction of trade unions and the inculcation of class war."

An equitable legal status for the union was placed first in the list of problems confronting American labor. "There is no question," the report says, "but that the union is a legitimate organization and performs constructive functions. In order give the trade unions not only legal existence but the right to exercise their normal functions, two legislative remedies must be enacted: Amendment of anti-trust and anti-combination legislation to prevent restriction of normal union activity, as is possible under present law, and definition of the jurisdiction of equity courts."

Quantity Production.

Organization of highly machinized industries was second on the list. "The use of mechanical power and machine tools," the supporting paragraph says, "is characteristic of quantity production, and also of the still more highly specialized method called mass production. So great are these changes that the effect is an industrial revolution with transformations comparable to the first industrial revolution that introduced the factory system . . . The problem of organizing them presents two aspects: What shall be the basis of union organization and what agency shall be responsible for organizing them?"

The Coweta County Centenary, The Float Parade and Pageant

The notable ceremonies held at Newnan on September 28 attracted thousands from a radius of one hundred miles, and it was the unanimous verdict, both in the success that comes with crowds and in the acclaim that greets magnificent display, that this occasion is destined to be memorable in the annals of Georgia.

The able and enthusiastic young chairman of the general committee, Bryan M. Blackburn, had ordered that the float parade and pageant "must move on the blow of the whistle" and these processions so started.

Everything went off as planned, and with smooth, dignified movement that showed thorough and skilled organization.

The float parade consisted of 63 floats, artistically designed and built by specially selected artists from New Orleans, and in the expressed comment of the builders, it presented a scene that was second only to the Mardi Gras in the extent of the procession. The historical creation of this parade was under the supervision of L. H. Hill and involved a great deal of research work. He was assisted by Frank Strippiin, David S. Cuttino, Mrs. C. B. Glover and Mrs. Frank Wilkinson.

Woman's Committee.

The woman's committee presided over by Mrs. J. L. Wellington, Jr.; the queen's committee, consisting of Miss Emory Freeman, chairman, Mrs. Sam Banks, Mrs. J. S. Gibson and Mrs. Cliff Glover, and the committee on entertainment headed by Mrs. T. J. Fisher showed rare efficiency in their respective parts of a perfect program.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the splendid work of Miss A. Laura Blackshear, illustrator, author of the pageant, and that of Mrs. Harriet Backers, who so efficiently cooperated with the local pageant committee.

The queen of the centennial, Miss Susan Hunter Cole, a beautiful and graceful young woman, every inch a queen, with her attendants, Misses Mary Glover, Clara Cole, Susan Hill, Martha North, Elizabeth Banks, Francis Coggins, Elizabeth McDonald, Virginia Wilkinson, Mrs. W. E. Row and Masters Cliff Glover, Jr., Nat Glover and Jimmy Weddington made a brilliant setting in a parade that has never been excelled.

The first prize of this parade of floats was won by the Newnan Cotton mills, second, by M. B. Mooney & Son, local merchants; third, by the Newnan Woman's club.

Bands from the Atlanta & West Point railroad and the Georgia Military academy furnished the music.

At night the most notable pageant ever presented in the state was shown in a natural amphitheater, where ten thousand people gathered. There were 518 people who took part in this splendid spectacle of skill and histronic talent, depicting history from the formation of the city and county, when the covered wagon, hound dogs tied to the rear, brought the first settler; the stage coach; Indians and the killing of General McIntosh; childhood stories by old "Uncle" Nathan; social life with the graceful minuet; war between the states and a perfect representation of General Lee; other wars and agricultural and industrial growth of today.

Directed by Blackburn.

This wonderfult presentation was under the personal direction of Bryan M. Blackburn, chairman of the general committee, to whose ability, care in the selection of his committee chairmen, and skill in organization, is due the splendid culminating successes of a most brilliant historic day.

Mr. Blackburn is one of the leaders in the industrial life of Georgia, being interested actively in many of the enterprises of Newnan. He is an Atlanta product and has not forgotten the home of his educational development, as evidenced by being a director in the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation. Mr. Blackburn has hundreds of friends in Atlanta who are gratified at his success.

This story would be incomplete if the county fair were not mentioned. This was one of the best county fairs ever held in Georgia. Farm products, live stock, manufacturers, poultry and all that goes with a county fair. Miss Martha Reid Robinson was in charge of the collection of many rare pieces of historical antiques. The organization and display of this rare collection of farm and industrial products was under the able direction of B. L. Redwine, president, and W. P. Gearreld, secretary-treasurer.

Coincident with the centennial celebration it will not be out of place to mention that this was also the birthday of R. D. Cole, still young, enthusiastic, progressive at the age of 73. "Mr. Duke," as he is lovingly called, is one of the foremost figures in the industrial activities of the state.

TAHURAMI INDIAN UPRISING REPORTED

Nogales, Ariz., October 2.—(AP)—The Tahurami Indians in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, tonight were reported to be in an armed uprising against the government. Dispatches reaching here said federal troops had engaged in a battle with the Indians.

TWO GOVERNORS, TWO ASSEMBLIES, CLAIM LEGALITY

Vera Cruz, Mexico, October 2.—(AP) Two governors and two legislatures are encamped at Jalapa, capital of the state, ever since the removal by the federal authorities of General Heriberto Jara, who was voted out of office by the legislature. Each of the contending factions is supremely confident of being recognized by the federal government as the legal authority.

The minority legislature claims legality because it is installed in the government house, while the majority body claims a similar status because of the presence of a quorum.

The political upheaval was accompanied by a complete change in municipal authorities.

Federal troops are guarding all public buildings throughout the state, but complete quiet prevails.

Waycross, Ga., October 2.—(Special.)—Ed R. Aycock has been reappointed game warden for Ware county, with added responsibility as a field deputy with jurisdiction over several adjoining counties, it was announced today. The appointment came from Peter S. Twitty, state fish and game commissioner.

Mr. Aycock states that licenses have arrived in Ware county.

BULGARIAN KING VISITOR IN ROME; IS SEEKING BRIDE

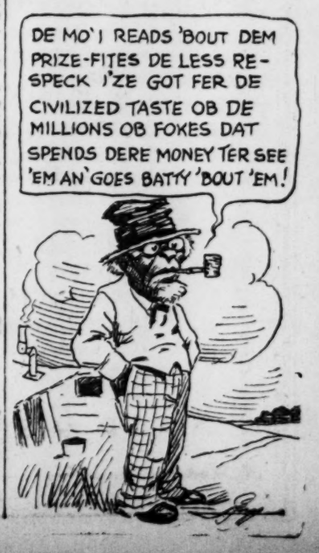

Rome, October 2.—(AP)—The matrimonial aspirations of the bachelor King Boris, of Bulgaria, have brought him to the Eternal City, where King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini have entertained him.

A semi-official announcement today reveals that Boris has been sojourning in Italy since September 25. He was at Castle San Passore as the house guest of the king.

He came to Rome September 30 and Premier Mussolini paid him a call of courtesy at the Hotel Russie, where he resides. The "interview" lasted one hour.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY FOR LOCAL PYTHIANS

The mother lodge of the Knight of Pythias in this city, Atlanta No. 30, will celebrate this evening in Castle Hall, in the Forsyth building, the golden anniversary of its institution.

Fifty years ago the Pythian Knights who were in the city petitioned for and obtained the charter for "Atlanta Twenty." Since them it has regularly functioned and been easily one of the foremost and most beneficent of the many fraternal organizations of the city. Its castle hall has opened its portcullis to more than a thousand of the leading and potential men of Atlanta and scores of them have served in the highest offices of the great order and in the influential stations of the city and the state.

Of the early members of "Atlanta Twenty" the chief survivors are Dr. Sam W. Small, of The Constitution, and Joseph M. Hunnicut. Already the lodge has conferred the 50 years veteran jewel on Dr. Small, who was a member of the order in advance of the institution of the present lodge. Tonight it is the intention to confer a similar veterant's jewel upon Past Chancellor Hunnicut.

The occasion this evening will be for all members of the order, whether belonging to local or exterior lodges, and the program will include choice music and special addresses by James W. Austin, one of the old and often honored leaders of the order, and by Dr. Small.

Senator Walter F. George, who is a member of the order, was invited to be the orator of the evening, but an unavoidable previous engagement prevented his appearance.

All knights in the city are requested to be at Castle Hall promptly at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

THREE BOX OFFICES NOW FOR ERLANGER

Three box offices will be maintained this season by the Erlanger theater, one to be located in the theater and two with prominent downtown business firms, it was announced by Lewis Haase, manager. This is in keeping with a policy to provide the best possible service to the people of Atlanta during the approaching season, according to Manager Haase.

One of the downtown offices will be located in the department store of M. Rich & Brothers' company, and the other at the Phillips & Crew Piano company at Peachtree and Ellis streets. The two downtown offices will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternonn, and will provide the same service as the box ofifces at the Erlanger theater. The theater office will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night.

Tickets for the Al G. Field Minstrels, the opening attraction, will go on sale Monday morning at the three offices. The Field organization with a big company of singers, dancers and comedians, will play a three-day engagement beginning Thursday night.

Manager Haase announced that the advance notices of the Field Minstrels are uniform in their praise of this season's show. Many new faces are to be seen this year, while nearly all of the old favorites have been retained. This is the forty-first year for this show and the first time it has played Atlanta in two years.

Fear He Killed Neighbor Causes Man to End Life

Concord, N. H., October 2.—(United News.)—In the belief that he had killed his neighbor in a bitter quarrel, Burt S. Stanley, Epsom poultryman, shot himself through the heart, it was revealed with the finding of his body today.

Discovery of Stanley's body in the chicken yard on his farm near here ended a four-day search during which a posse of men aided by Stanley's own dogs had failed to find him.

Stanley had a fight with Olin L. Davis, neighboring farmer, last Thursday after Davis had accused him of carrying on an affair with Mrs. Davis. A dispute over an unpaid bill for eggs which Stanley had sold Davis also entered into the quarrel, neighbors said.

After the battle, which was staged in a woodshed on Stanley's place, the poultryman disappeared, and his whereabouts was a mystery until 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon when a group of men working under direction of Constable George Huckins came upon his body.

It lay huddled in a corner of the henhouse yard. A gaping bullet wound in the region of the heart plainly showed that Stanley, fearful of being prosecuted for murder, had committed suicide.

The dead man leaves a widow and three children, Samuel, 24; Marjorie, 18, and Cornell, 9. The elder son is employed by a garage in Boston but the other two children are attending school at home. Mrs. Stanley is at present a patient in a Concord hospital.

In view of the fact that Davis' injuries were not fatal, no warrant had been issued for Stanley and no prosecution was contemplated. The authorities were anxious to find him and obtain his side of the story, but did not expect to press any charges. Sheriff George A. Wooster said yesterday.

DIAMOND DEALER FINDS GEMS BRING OWNER HARD LUCK

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.)

Chicago, October 2.—Lester Lawrence, aged 53, a diamond merchant, was enjoying a little poker game in the Capitol building with seven others, all said to be jewelers, when the police raided the office and locked up all the payers.

Shortly after they had been put in the "bull-pen," along with other prisoners, Lawrence emitted a strenuous bellow. Some experts in the crew had picked his pockets of a packet containing diamonds worth $5,000.

All the prisoners were searched, but no trace of the stole. gems was found, until the engineer, exploring the boiler room, found the gems. They had been pushed through a crack in the floor.

Lawrence and his fellow poker players were set free with an admonition and started to their various homes. However, Mr. Lawrence had an inspiration. He stopped at the office of a friend and put the packet of diamonds in the safe. This was just as well, for when he stepped into the hallway of his own home, two masked bandits poked pistols in his ribs and demanded the diamonds. When he convinced them he did not have them they gave him a severe beating.

So, aside from saving his diamonds, the day and night were utterly ruined for Lawrence.

American-Cuban Air Mail Service Opens October 19

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—Opening of the United States first regular international air mail has been set for October 19 when the Key West-to-Havana service will be inaugurated. The link with Cuba is the first step toward a service for speeding up mail communications with Central and South America.

The Pan-American Airways, Inc., of New York, will operate the Key West-Havana service, having been awarded a contract by Postmaster General New at 40 1-2 cents a pound for all mail carried. The company is understood to have arranged with the Cuban government for carrying mail between Havana and Key West.

John K. Montgomery, vice president of the corporation, has been in conference with air mail service officials and explained that the company was preparing a landing field and hangars at Key West and hoped to begin service on schedule. One flight daily is called for by the contract which permits the company to transport passengers and express as well as mail.

Extension of the service from Havana to British Honduras, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama and canal zone on a tri-weekly basis is contemplated by the company. Such a service would expedite transmission of mail and passengers by steamship connection at Panama, placing them in New York in about four days. Eight large flying boats are expected to form the fleet. They will be multi-motored and capable of carrying a 3,500-pound pay load.

The service from Key West to Havana will include a fleet of three Fokker airplanes. Mail dispatched by the planes to Havana will not require the usual air mail postage. The service will be operated under the foreign mail contract system and not under the contract air mail law. The Cuban government probably will make a charge of five cents additional for mail carried by the planes.

AIR-ROUTE OFFICIAL HERE ON SCHEDULE

Aticipating regular mail deliveries by airplane between New York, Atlanta and New Orleans, William N. DeWald, representing the New Orleans firm which bid successfully for the southern lap, is in Atlanta to work out a cooperative schedule with local officials.

Mr. DeWald is operations manager for the St. Tammany Gulf Coast Airways, Inc., organized recently by a group of prominent New Orleans men to contract for the Atlanta-New Orleans delivery service.

The visitor expects to visit Atlanta's airport at Candler field today in company with William D. Hartsfield, chairman of city council's aviation committee, and other aviation officials.

Because the governmental survey of the route is not progressing with the speed at first hoped for, Mr. DeWald believes that regular mail service cannot be established prior to December 1.

Mr. DeWald expressed himself as pleased with the great interest which local civic, county and state officials are showing in the project.

A mass meeting was held at the courthouse Friday night and all plans were laid for his visit.

LEGIONNAIRE PARTY REACHES BRUSSELS

Brussels, October 2. — United News.)—Amid cheers of war veterans, government officials, and a large crowd of private citizens, 280 American Legion members, headed by Retiring Commander Howard P. Savage, arrived here today on their "good will" tour.

After placing a wreath of the tomb of the unknown soldier, the delegation was tendered a reception by the Belgian war veterans' association.

"We have come back to learn if all is well with you, our comrades," said Savage in a speech at the reception.

"The American Legion is your brother organization. Our ideals in war and in peace are the same. They are those of justice, peace, progress and loyalty to God and country. Let us leave these ideals bright after we have passed beyond, leaving them to posterity strengthened by the bonds of friendship we have formed this day."

515 LEGIONNAIRES BACK HOME AGAIN.

New York, October 2.—(United News.)—The first of the returning members of the American Legion arrived aboard the S. S. President Harding today.

There were 515 of them—practically the entire passenger list.

"There would have been at least 2,000 of them if we'd had sufficient room," officers of the liner said.

"Boy, we had a good time, but Hoboken looked just as good as it did nine years ago," was the ex-doughboys' usual greeting to friends at the pier.

The legionnaires frankly admitted that things had cost a lot more than they had expected "over there" and that they and most of their companions went broke.

"But the people of Paris treated us well, if they did charge us a lot," they insisted.

GOLF TOURNAMENT AND 'CUE FRIDAY FOR TRAFFIC CLUB

The fall barbecue and golf tournament of the Traffic club of Atlanta will be held Friday at the West End Golf course, L. W. Shehee, general chairman of the golf committee, announced Sunday.

Numerous prizes have been provided for the winners of the golf tournament, and a barbecue for the members and guests is being arranged by a committee headed by J. Y. Bruce, general chairman of the entertainment committee.

The easy access to the West End course from the city is expected to produce a record crowd at the tournament and barbecue, officials of the traffic club said Sunday. The club is located at the junction of Gordon street and Cascade avenue, and can be reached from Five Points by riding the Whitehall street cars.

The barbecue is to be serbed at 1 o'clock in the afternoon in the grove of trees between number two and five greens. The prizes for the tournament winners will be awarded on the following scores: For members only, low gross for 36 holes; low gross for 18 holes, morning; low gross for 18 holes, afternoon; low net for 18 holes, afternoon, (handicaps based on morning round); and high gross for 36 holes. For members and guests, blind bogey on gross in morning; blind bogey on gross score in afternoon. For guests only, low gross for 36 holes.

SPANISH WAR VETS TO ASK CLEAN-UP OF CAMP QUARTERS

Addresses by Rudolph W. H. Schultz, of Olympia, Washington; Judge Max Land and Sam C. Crane Sunday featured the regular Sunday afternoon meeting of Fitzhugh Lee camp No. 6, United Spanish War Veterans, at the city auditorium, H. D. Shaddeau, commander, presided.

A committee composed of Mr. Crane, Sam W. Small, John Chalman and John P. Haunson will appear before the auditorium committee of city council requesting that body to clean up quarters of the camp, which are in bad condition, according to members of the post.

Mr. Schultz told of the organization's activities in Washington and pointed out that many cities provide headquarters for the veterans without cost. He also discussed other matters of interest to the camp.

Judge Land lauded the effort to secure tax exemptions for disabled members of the organization at the last legislature, and declared that other progressive states have passed similar laws.

LOCAL BIRD LIFE SHOWN IN MOVIES TONIGHT AT CLUB

A premiere screen showing of the shy feathered folk who haunt Atlanta's woodlots and lawns will be exhibited tonight by the Rev. Wallace Rogers before the monthly meeting of the Atlanta Bird club.

Dr. Rogers for the past ten years has devoted such time as he could spare from pastorate duties at the Trinity Methodist church to photographing local birds. It has been only recently that he adapted the amateur motion picture camera to his hobby.

This feature of the meeting, to be held at 7:30 o'clock a. m. the residence of A. D. Whittaker, 279 Tenth street, N. E., is expected to insure a full attendance of local members and their friends.

Nature lovers throughout the city are manifesting an increasing interest in the work of the local club, C. R. Whittaker, secretary, said Sunday night, suggesting that persons interested in membership call him at Hemlock 2134.

Among feathered performers to make their screen appearance tonight are such popular favorites as the mocking bird, the cardinal, the blue bird and the wren, Mr. Whittaker said.

"Never found better values anywhere"

This letter from one of our customers expresses just what we hear over and over again from the thrifty and beauty-loving home-makers who visit our store. Even traveling furniture salesmen, long experienced in the business, want to know how we can keep our prices so low.

Here is the answer:

Our whole plan of selling is different. We sell only for cash—always at the lowest possible prices with a regular, minimum percentage of profit. That means no selling on the instalment plan, no expense from credit and collection departments. Prices stay the same, without "mark-ups" or special sales. We know that lower prices and uniform prices will bring us more customers in the long run.

That's why you'll be agreeably surprised at the low prices as soon as you visit our store.

September 10, 1927.

Mr. S. Y. Philibosian,
Atlanta, Ga.

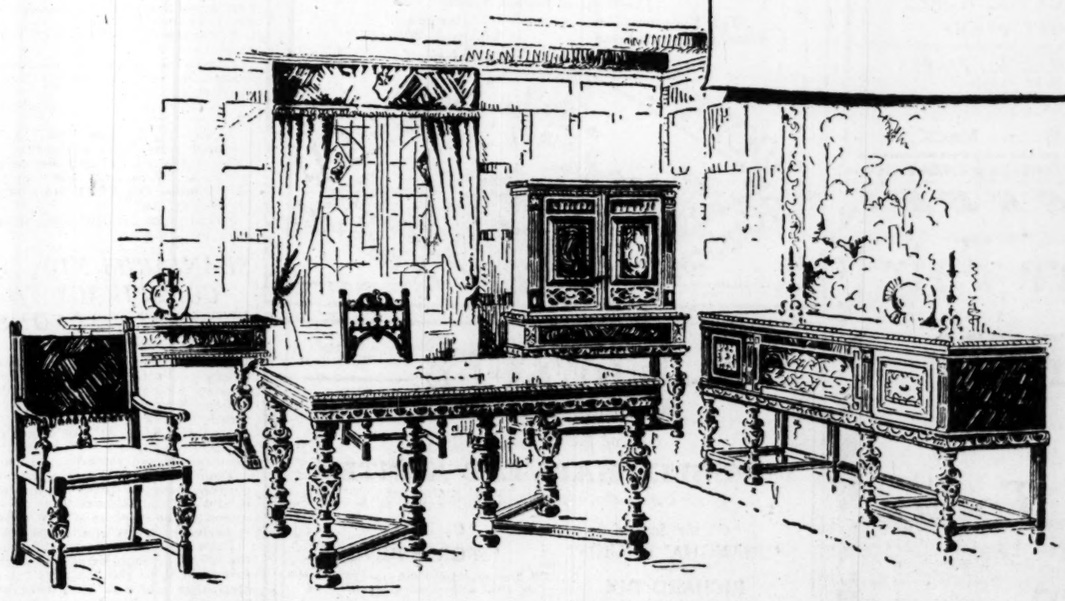

My dear Mr. Philibosian;

It is with great pleasure that I tell you we are still enjoying the beautiful pieces of furniture purchased in your store.

I have shopped in all the larger cities of the United States and nowhere have I been more courteously or more satisfactorily served. Your store is beautiful, and it is a pleasure to go through whether I am buying anything or not.

Until coming to Atlanta I found made-to-order furniture in Baltimore less expensive than elsewhere, but your prices and quality both compare favorably with theirs. In fact, I have never found better values than yours anywhere.

Yours very truly,
Mary C. Moore

Lots of people have seen our beautiful displays and thought we were a "high hat," expensive store, but we're just a human, friendly store, with a selling plan that will appeal to sensible people.

We do have beautiful, fine quality merchandise, but every piece is marked surprisingly low, so that it represents real value. At such prices you can afford to buy here whether you're furnishing a stately mansion or a cozy bungalow.

The minstrels will open the season at the Erlanger theater on Thursday night, when they begin an engagement limited to three nights and Saturday matinee. Seats are now on sale at the Erlanger theater box office, open from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., and may also be obtained at M. Rich & Brothers' company and at Phillips & Crew Piano company.

Keith's Georgia.

A fast moving vaudeville show featuring a "hot" band and a whirlwind dancing act are two of the stage attractions at Keith's Georgia this week with several other good acts working hard for the applause. On the screen "A Gentleman of Paris," with Adolphe Menjou starring in the title role, will be shown. This is one of Paramount's latest releases and the first time that Adolphe Menjou has been seen at the Georgia.

Capitol.

The beautiful Virginia Valli, missing from Atlanta screens for many weeks, will reappear as the featured player of the Capitol's feature picture today. The picture is "Paid to Love" a William Fox production, in which her leading man is George O'Brien, one of the most popular of the younger generation of movie luminaries. "Paid To Love" is a vivid and colorful melodrama.

Loew's Grand.

An extra star bill with some of the foremost artists in vaudeville appearing as headliners will be offered this week at Loew's Grand. Mildred Livington, popular mimic and singer, will appear in a bright and breezy sketch entitled "Cinderella." Other acts on the new bill are Burt and Rosedale, Steele and Winslow, Hart, Wagner and Lela and Joe Fanton and Company. Tom Mix, the fast and breezy westerner, will appear in a new picture, entitled "The Circus Ace."

Forsyth.

The new Forsyth Players, who open for an unlimited run, October 10, arrived in Atlanta Sunday afternoon and will plunge into rehearsals Monday morning. The company has been organized in New York by Burt Kelley, well remembered in Atlanta and now one of the foremost stock producers in the country.

Howard.

Have you ever read about the hair-raising exploits of Captain Kidd, Long John Silver and all the other pirates and buccaneers in story books? Piracy as colorful is flourishing today, just as it did in the days of the Spanish Main. It furnishes the basic theme of Richard Dix's new Paramount starring picture, "Shanghai Bound," which opens at the Howard theater today. Al Short says that his "Sports Revue," including Bemis and Brown (Comedy Collegiate Dancers), and Charlie Calvert (Master of Fun), is an outstanding stage show. The Atlanta Constitution's "Kiddies' Dreamland" is an extra added stage attraction, in which thirty of Atlanta's most talented kiddies are the performers.

Rialto.

"Madame Pompadour," the screened life story of the most famous lover of the eighteenth century, will open today at the Rialto theater to inaugurate a week of fine entertainment there. Dorothy Gish and Antonio Moreno, the finest romantic team since Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman, are the stars in "Madame Pompadour," which will be accompanied by the Jimmy Adams comedy called "Be Careful," and Paramount News.

Metropolitan.

"The First Auto," the exciting human screen drama featuring Barney Oldfield and Patsy Ruth Miller, which opens a week's engagement in Atlanta today at the Metropolitan theater, symbolize the passing of the old order and the birth of the present era. Enrico Leide, conducting the Metropolitan orchestra, has arranged a splendid musical score, while the extra screen attractions will be a Christie comedy and Metropolitan News and Views.

Ponce de Leon.

Olive Borden and George O'Brien are seen in "Fig Leaves," a thoroughly delectable little screen vehicle, which is playing for today only at the Ponce de Leon theater. In "Fig Leaves," we see the old story of the Garden of Eden portrayed again, but in a new and entertaining manner that would never be recognized as having any resemblance to either Adam or Eve.

Alamo No. 1.

Comedy as well as action and thrills may be seen in "Quicker 'n Lightnin'," featuring Buffalo Bill, Jr., at the Alamo No. 1 theater Monday and Tuesday. Besides the wonderful story and fast action, there are some interesting things to be seen. You get a close picture of the houses of the Pueblo Indians, built centuries ago. You get a very good idea of how the first primitive inhabitants of this country lived.

Fairfax.

The Fairfax theater is lined up this week for a record run on the box office, starting off Monday with piquant Betty Bronson in the madcap comedy, "Ritzy." As an American heiress who impetuously asserts she will wear a ducal coronet and is then compelled to make good her boast, Betty affords plenty of laughs, resulting from her amusing complications.

NEGROES ARE URGED TO "THINK RIGHT"

Urging colored people to think right thoughts, the Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes institute, Sunday afternoon told a large congregation in the First A. M. E. church of Rockdale Park that many members of the race spend more time to think up means of escaping their just obligations than they use in earning an honest living.

The Rev. Holmes spoke on "How To Regulate Your Thoughts," pointing out that "people can never be better than their thoughts, and everything good and evil originates in thought." He said that the wrong thinking of colored people, in devising ways and means of escaping their just obligations, has increased the numbers of men practicing law far beyond the number in the profession of teaching.

The Rev. Horace Williams, pastor of the Rockdale church, spoke on the educational condition of the colored race, stating that it is the duty of every citizen to make investments in education for the masses of the people.

Kiddies Ready for Curtain

:: AL SHORT HOLDS FINAL REHEARSAL ::

In Constitution Stage Show

BY ELMO HAMBY.

"Spotlight, please!"

This and various other remarks attendant to a final dress rehearsal, echoed up and down the vacant aisles of the Howard theater Sunday afternoon, where the hard-working and persistent Al Short was putting through the paces, the kiddies who compose the cast of The Constitution's "Kiddies' Dreamland" revue, which is to be featured on the Howard stage all this week.

For three hours Sunday, Mr. Short and Miss Virginia Semon, dancing instructor, who has been training the children during the past week, drilled the group of kids ranging in age from 3 to 12 years old, and when the last light was "kicked" at dusk Sunday, the cast, scenery, stage, and all the other paraphernalia was "all set" for the first curtain at the second matinee show today.

Those authorities who witnessed the rehearsal were of the opinion that in "Kiddies' Dreamland," Atlanta is slated to see a juvenile production that far surpasses anything of its kind ever presented on a local stage.

It is being presented by The Constitution in line with its policy of frequently providing outlets for any stage talent or ability possessed by local youth. There are many promising young stars of both stage and screen who can point to The Constitution as the agent that provided for them a means of discovering their talent for the entertainment field.

"Kiddies' Dreamland" is a very complete stage presentation devised and staged by Al Short, who is a veteran of the producing world, and there are many pleasing and catchy musical numbers in the score arranged by Mr Short.

In selecting the cast, Mr. Short gave personal try-outs to all comers—and their name was legion—and as a result he has a cast which he believes will prove an instantaneous hit with theatergoers of the city.

MAN WHO WED HIS FIRST COUSIN WILL FACE JURY

Magnolia, Miss., October 2.—The first case of a violation of the Mississippi first-cousin anti-marriage law has been recorded in the court of Judge D. M. Huff, in which Lee Andrews is charged with marrying his first cousin, Miss Ouida Wells. Three affidavits have been made against Andrews by the parents of the girl, charging him with perjury in swearing that she was 18 years of age when she was not; with incest because of intermarriage with a relative prohibited by statutes and with incestuous adultery. He was placed under $500 bond in each case to await the action of the grand jury which convenes in October. Andrews and his cousin, Ouida, were married last Saturday.

SPANIARDS NIP CONSPIRACY TO KILL ALFONSO

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, October 2.—(United News.)—Thirty persons, including three alleged ringleaders, have been arrested in what is declared to be a widespread plot to assassinate King Alfonso and Prime Minister de Rivera, overthrow the government, and establish a republic.

From confidential sources, the police received news of plans to foment a revolution, and without warning they descended on various places believed to be headquarters of the plotters.

Professor Godofredo Bartolome, of the school of engineering and agriculture, said to be the leader of the revolutionists, and two prominent artillery officers, alleged to be his chief lieutenants, are among those under arrest.

Police, working under the direction of Chief Commissary Finoll, said they found a number of recently-made bombs.

All the imprisoned men have been taken to military prisons, and are held incommunicado.

It is declared that the plot had wide ramifications from its centers in Barcelona and Valencia.

As part of their plans, it is declared the revolutionists—most of them republicans—planned to assassinate General Primo de Rivera, the prime minister, and King Alfonso, at Madrid.

It is understood further arrests are probable.

MEMPHIS GREETS LINDBERGH TODAY

Memphis, October 2.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will arrive in Memphis tomorrow in his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," to find the greater part of the city enjoying a holiday because of him.

Mayor Rowlett Paine issued a proclamation declaring a half holiday, beginning at noon, and the thousands of school children will be dismissed from their classes in order that they may see the famous New York-to-Paris flier.

Even the wheels of justice will pause for the noted visitor, Judge Harry B. Anderson, of the United States district court having announced court will be recessed for the occasion. Judge Anderson is a member of the reception committee.

With Colonel Lindbergh's visit, Memphis is to take the opportunity of expressing its appreciation for having the United States cruiser Memphis, which brought Lindbergh back from France, named after it. A $6,600 silver service, procured through subscriptions of thousands of Memphisians, will be presented to the officers and crew of the cruiser. It will be received by Captain H. E. Lackey, commandant of the Hampton Roads naval training station; Captain Lackey was the first commanding officer of the Memphis and was in command when Lindbergh came home. Admiral Leigh, commander of the U. S. S. Tennessee, also is to participate in the presentation ceremonies.

Colonel Lindbergh and the famous "We" are scheduled to arrive from Little Rock at 2 p. m.

BANDIT PROVES POLITE AS CLERK IN EMERGENCY

Jersey City, N. J., October 2.—William Johnson, manager of the Eagle Grocery company, had just been ordered by two robbers to "stick 'em up," when a woman stepped into the store. Quietly one of the bandits ushered Johnson into a back room, while the other courteously asked the woman what she wished. "A can of beans, please." "It's a lovely day," observed the bandit, while he wrapped the can. He rang up 15 cents, then emptied the register of $55, called his companion, and both disappeared.

TRIAL WEDDINGS TO BE DISCUSSED BY SCIENTISTS

Buffalo, N. Y., October 2.—(United News.)—Trial marriages, free love and the radio were being held up and carefully scrutinized by scientists and educators here today to see if the American family is going to pieces and if so, why.

The first conference on family life in America opened its sessions to determine whether the family is "gradually but definitely going to pieces as an institution in America." Leading social workers of the United States, Canada and England are attending the conference.

One whole morning will be devoted to inquiry into the present status of marriage and parenthood. Mary E. Richmond, author of "Child Marriages" and other social texthooks, and Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, the novelist, will lead discussions on these subjects.

Other sessions of the family life investigation will be conducted to determine the status of the alleged menaces of the twentieth century. These include the newspapers, the radio, the automobile and the movies.

Another group of sessions will go into the sentiment for companionate and trial marriages, free love, legalized polygamy and the reasons for and benefits of life-long monagamy.

WOMAN SCENARIO WRITER DENIES ACTRESS' CHARGES

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood, Calif., October 2.—Charges mentioning her in a divorce cross complaint, filed by Mrs. Dorothy Wallace Webb, motion picture actress, are "ridiculous and laughable," according to Helen Klumps, scenario and magazine writer, who formerly was a New York newspaper dramatic writer.

Mrs. Webb's cross bill accuses her husband, Millard Webb, motion picture director of cruelty and asserts that he had hugged and kissed Miss Klumps. Miss Klumps' retort today was that she has no recollection of such occurrences and that "it is a rotten thing for Mrs. Webb to say."

Dorothy Wallace Webb has been known professionally both as Letitia Kelly and as Dorothy Wallace. Under the latter name she played a prominent part in the film, "Foolish Wives." She asks $1,250 a month alimony for herself and $3,000 counsel fees.

Webb filed suit for divorce against his wife 10 days ago alleging cruelty and extravagance. Webb said his wife spent $100,000 in the two years and six months since their marriage.

PRISONS IN U. S. FILLING FASTER

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—Commitments to prisons and reform institutions, as shown by a census of 31 states, increased from 21,054 in 1923 to 27,018 last year, or 28.7 per cent, the department of commerce said in making public statistics gathered in the census.

On the basis of population, there were 27.9 per 100,000 of general population in 1923 and 34.1 in 1926, the department stated.

The number of prisoners in confinement on January 1, 1927, was equivalent to 84.1 per 100,000 of general population, as compared with 66.6 on January 1, 1923, according to the survey.

In the 31 states covered by this statement, says the department, there has been a steady increase in the number of prisoners in state prison, and reformatories, as indicated by the figures for the dates at the beginning of the three most recent years, for which the data are available, which are as follows: January 1, 1923, 47,578; January 1, 1926, 59,692; January 1, 1927, 63,828.

Yanks and Pirates Will Enter Series on Even Terms

24 New York Regulars Off To Pittsburgh

Yankees Confident as They Start West To Battle Pirates.

BY FRANK GETTY.

New York, October 2.—Bent upon bringing back to the American league the championship of the baseball world, the New York Yankees left for Pittsburgh Sunday night.

With every player on the club in shape, with no hint of a late season slump to cause concern, and with a better-seasoned and therefore stronger lineup than last year, the Yanks went west with high confidence of success in the world series which they open against the Pirates at Forbes field Wednesday.

24 Regulars Leave.

A special train of the Pennsylvania railroad took 24 Yankee regulars, Manager Miller Huggins, Majordomo Mark Roth, and a small retinue of trainers and reporters to Pittsburgh.

If Donie Bush's Pirates hope to stop this brawny, scrappy lot, they must be prepared to beat a better ball club than that which faced and fought and all but defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series of 1926.

For there is no doubt that the Yankees are stronger and better prepared for the post-season battle for the baseball championship than they were a year ago.

The infield and outfield, barring accidents between now and next Wednesday, will be the same as in 1926.

That means that Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, youngsters who never had experienced the thrills of participating in a world series a year ago, will be vastly better for the knowledge gained against the Cardinals.

Koenig, for one, should prove a much stronger defensive factor than he was in the series of 1926.

Lazzeri should do better at bat against the Pittsburgh pitchers than he did last October against St. Louis.

As for the veterans of more than one world series—Babe Ruth, for instance, has taken part in seven previous to this year—none is to be classed as past his prime.

Hurlers Stronger.

The pitching staff with which the American league champions hope to turn back the fleet, hard-hitting Buccaneers has been strengthened by the addition of Wilcy Moore, a great relief twirler.

Wilcy has a "sinker" ball which may prove just the thing to sink the Corsair craft.

And so there seemed every good reason for the confidence with which the Yankees entrained for the fray.

It was impossible to get Miller Huggins to predict a victory for his club, but he did say that "the boys will be at the top of their game for the series."

Huggins is completing ten years of service as manager of the New York Yankees, during which he has won five pennants, one world's championship and has finished but once in the second division. But for all his great record, Miller insists he never had ventured to predict a victory for his club.

Other New Yorkers were not as reticent, however, and when the Yanks went west they were firmly installed as 7 to 10 favorites for the series.

Pirates Supported.

There was considerable support for the Pirates, at that, especially where betting concerned the opening game. Here it was a case of even money, or, if one dealt with a betting commissioner, 9 to 10 and take your pick.

The prowess of Gehrig and Ruth as home run hitters likely to be especially dangerous in a short series, overshadowed the fame of the Waner brothers, of Pittsburgh, in the estimation of the gambling fraternity.

The fact that the National league pennant pursuit lasted until the penultimate game of the season left less time than usual for an adequate analysis of the Pirates. But it proved that Donie Bush's club is a game, fighting outfit of real ball players.

PIRATES LEAVE FOR OWN BATTLEGROUND.

Cincinnati, Ohio, October 2.—(AP)—Manager Donie Bush and players of the new champion Pirates left Cincinnati for home tonight in a cheerful frame of mind. They will practice at Forbes field tomorrow in preparation for the world's series which begins Wednesday.

Bush said he would turn over Forbes field to the Yankees between the hours of 11 a. m. and 1 o'clock both tomorrow and Tuesday. The Yankees are due to arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow, and they will have two practice sessions before the series to become accustomed to angles of the field.

SERIES UMPIRES ARE SELECTED.

New York, October 2.—(AP)—Ernest Quigley and Charles Moran were selected by President John Heydler, of the National league, tonight to serve as umpires from the National league in the world's series, opening next Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

Quigley, a veteran of 15 years' service, has served in four previous world's series, the last in 1924. His home is in Kansas. He is widely known as a basketball and football official.

Moran has seen 10 years' service in the National league as an umpire. His home is in Kentucky and he coached Centre college to eminence on the football gridiron. This will be his first world's series as coaching duties heretofore have made it necessary that he leave at the end of the baseball season to take charge of his teams. Moran came to the National league from the Southern association.

Annual Indian Trapshoot Starts Today

With leading marksmen from the Five Tribes here and ready for the starting gun, the annual Indian trapshoot will get under way at the Atlanta Gun club this morning when the gunmen gathered here for the fifth annual pow-wow begin "powing" away in the 200 singles and 25 pair doubles events.

The 1927 meeting is expected to be the greatest in the history of the event. The shoot will last three days with the 200 singles, 25 pair doubles and international 100 doubles booked for Tuesday and the 100 singles, 100 handican and 25 pair doubles slated for Wednesday, the final day of the meet.

Four class champions will be decided Monday, the singles amateur, professional and women's will be decided Tuesday. The handicap, doubles and Wolf and Lamb championships bring the shoot to a close Wednesday.

Dr. H. N. Alford has three titles to defend in this shoot class A singles, championship and all-round. It is mighty hard for a man to repeat in trapshooting. But Dr. Alford is working very hard and will give the other amateurs a lot of trouble before the last shot has been fired.

AROUND THE BIG LEAGUE CIRCUITS

New York, October 2.—(AP)—The final week of the baseball season brought out the best that was in Pittsburgh and the St. Louis Cardinals, who were fighting for the National league championship. Pittsburgh won five out of seven games to insure the pennant and the Cardinals, fighting to the last ditch, obtained five victories in six starts. The New York Giants, with only a remote mathematical possibility of finishing up at the top, lost their bearings and dropped two games out of six.

Many errors cropped out in the last week of play in both leagues. The Brooklyn Dodgers were guilty of 12 misplays in three games, while the Boston Braves erred 13 times in seven contests. The Boston Red Sox led the list, however, with 16, and 10 of these came in one game. The New York Yankees contributed 10 boots in five games and the Philadelphia Athletics were charged with 12 in five games.

The week's record of major league teams (including today's game) for games won, lost, runs scored, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs:

HAROLD RUSK.

"Cedartown" they've called him ever since he moved from Cedartown to Atlanta and began playing on the Tech High team some years back. Rusk played center at Tech High and is now a second to Peter Pund on the Tech squad. Last year Pund was the pivot man that Alex held in reserve, and Rusk—then a sophomore—didn't get into any games. He played in the opener Saturday, however, and did fairly well. Standing about one inch over six-feet, Rusk weighs 172 pounds and handles the job of backing up a line in good fashion. After this season he has one more year on Tech's varsity squad.

Paul Waner Cops Batting Honors Of 'Big 8'

New York, October 2.—(AP)—Paul Waner carried off the batting championship of the "Big Eight" and Lou Gehrig led the stars of this group in extra base hits, a final compilation shows. Gehrig made a spirited fight for Waner's honor but fell five points short of his objective. Gehrig led Waner in extra base hits, with 116 to the Pittsburgh star's 68.

WALK REFUSES TO LET STRIB FIGHT BERLEY

Walk Miller, who handles the pugilistic affairs of Young Stribling, has refused to allow the Georgian to fight Paul Berlenbach at the city auditorium the night of October 13, so Matchmaker Max Abelson declared Sunday. Abelson said that he had definitely given up hope of securing Strib as Berlenbach's foe and was now dickering for the services of another well known scrapper.

"I had a protracted long distance telephone conversation with Walk Miller Saturday night and offered him a good guarantee for Stribling to fight Berlenbach here," Abelson explained. "But Miller contends that he could not think of letting Strib meet Berlenbach for the figure that I could afford to offer."

In refusing Matchmaker Abelson's offer Manager Miller stuck to his contention that his only reason for refusing the fight was the fact that Stribling could not afford to meet Berlenbach here for the purse offered.

Now that it has been definitely established that Stribling is not available Matchmaker Abelson will make his choice of a foe from the four fighters originally under consideration, as Berlenbach's opponent. The four mentioned at the time were Jack Renault, Joe Lohman, Chuck Wiggins and Tiny Herman.

SMITH, SARAZEN CAPTURE $2,500 GOLF MATCH

New York, October 2.—(AP)—MacDonald Smith and Gene Sarazen today defeated Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell at Lakeville Country club, 5 and 4, in a 72-hole best ball match for a purse of $2,500. The first 36 holes of the match were played yesterday at Washington, D. C., and the players were all square as they started off today.

Seven birdies and an eagle by Smith on the first nine today constituted too fast a pace for Armour, the national open champion, and Farrell, winner of a large number of open championships this year.

Smith sank a 20-foot putt on the fourteenth hole in the afternoon round to insure the victory with a birdie three.

Moore Recovers From Head Injury

Birmingham, Ala., October 2.—(AP) William "Bucky" Moore, backfield ace of the Loyola football squad, who was injured in yesterday's game between Howard and Loyola here, has recovered sufficiently to be able to return to New Orleans tonight, hospital authorities said today.

Moore suffered a concussion at the base of the brain when he struck the ground on his head after being tackled on an attempted end run in the second quarter of the game. Loyola trainers were unable to revive him and he was taken to a hospital where an X-ray showed that no bones were broken.

Coach Clark W. Shaughnessy, of the Loyola squad, believes Moore's injury would have been fatal if he had not worn the heavily padded football headgear.

"We aretickled pink that Moore escaped so miraculously," Shaughnessy said. "The kid always plays the game without headgear, but for some reason which he did not state he wore the gear for the first time yesterday. That saved his life."

The Passing of The Kid.

The news that Coach George (Kid) Woodruff will surrender the athletic reins at University of Georgia will be received with much sorrow by those who have been associated with him in his official capacity.

Naturally, there are many Georgia alumni with chronic pains in the region of their several mid-sections who jumped up in every meeting and gave the little Georgia coach the royal razz but if those same men had been privates in the army of Wellington they would have told how the defeat of Napoleon should have been done.

Perhaps there are greater coaches in these several United States and surely there are teams who have had greater records in the past few years than have the Bulldogs on the gridiron but even the tummy-achers are forced to admit that Coach Kid Woodruff gave more to Georgia than he ever took away.

There are many stories of Kid Woodruff's devotion to Georgia which have never been told and there are many which never will be told but to those who know these stories and have the pleasure of knowing their hero either in a personal way or through athletic connections will turn back a tear of regret when they hear of his intention to desert the active coaching lead at Athens.

A Letter of Thanks.

It is a strange twist of human nature which causes readers of the papers to pass by the pleasing things as a matter of course and jump with both feet in the middle of any writer who happens to step on their toes.

When some reader does appreciate a piece in the paper we of the scribes appreciate it enough to boast a bit. A few days ago this column launched an attack on certain snake stories appearing in the press. The letter below was received from a reader.

Mr. Dick Hawkins,
Atlanta Constitution, City.
Dear Mr. Hawkins:

May I thank you for your article in The Constitution regarding the horrible snake story from Juliette, Ga.? I say "horrible" advisedly, for the story had such a depressing effect upon a sensitive nature that the child's agony and the mother's tortured conscience stood out in bold relief for many days and nights.

In a way, I blame any paper for publishing such gruesome things, even if true, and certainly condemn them if the story is not based upon fact.

Thank you again for the article and I will be a steady sports page reader from now on.

Sincerely,
MRS. C. E. FRAZIER,
The Pallas Apartments, City.

6 Conference Teams Remain Undefeated

Georgia Tech, Tulane, Clemson, Maryland, Tennessee and Georgia Boast Clean Records.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

An even dozen Southern conference teams have been jerked from the clouds of conjecture and now must trudge or trot—as the case may be—on the firmer ground of figures, as a result of Saturady's schedule, which provided six conflicts between members of the conference.

Georgia Tech, Clemson, Tulane, Tennessee, Georgia and Maryland boast unblemished escutcheons, their pristine purity having been preserved respectively at the expense of V. M. I., Auburn, Ole Miss, North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina.

No Tie Games.

No tie games were recorded, a fact that brings pleasure to those who bemoan the annual late season doubt about undisputed rank in the standings.

While a bare majority of the conference were engaged in internecine strife, ten others were still prepping on the borderlands—with varying degrees of opposition to make them ready for the serious business yet ahead. The most ambitious of the non-conference tasks was undertaken by Kentucky, which team manfully held Indiana to a 21-to-0 score.

L. S. U. continued her threatening performances against Southwestern of Louisiana and again showed scoring power with a 52-to-0 romp. Alabama, thrice champion, meets the Louisiana bunch next Saturday in Birmingham and sustained the growing interest Friday by defeating Southwestern of Memphis, 31 to 0.

Maryland, in conquring South Carolina, 26 to 0, upheld pre-season predictions, and is proceeding with a strong schedule in a manner that shows fitness for her task of meeting representative teams from all sections during the remainder of the season.

Bulldogs Look Good.

Georgia's Bulldogs, in their first game of the season, entered conference competition with a vim against Virginia, and displayed great power, both in the line and the backfield, McCrary especially drawing attention with his ball-carrying proclivities, the major item in Georgia's 32-to-0 triumph.

Despite an evil-looking tendency to fumble, indicating that Coch Alexander has much to teach his charges about handling the ball, Tech managed a one-touchdown victory over V. M. I., 7 to 0. The Tornado's forward strength seems pronounced, and in Thomason, sophomore halfback, they possess a shifty runner who will yet be heard from in conference circle.

The all-veteran team of Tennessee seems determined to provide a paradoxical upset by running true to form and exhibited a smooth and effective attack, both afoot and in the air, in running up a 26 to 0 victory over the North Carolina Tar Heels. The latter team still has much to do with its backfield, which needs smoother coordination to utilize the effectiveness its individuals undoubtedly possess.

Two Real Stars.

Menville and Pizzano, running from half and quarter, looked especially good in the Tulane Green Wave's 19 to 7 defeat of Ole Miss and were outstanding examples of the general improvement which Tulane seems to be showing against the heavier end of her schedule.

Earlier dope had not given much evidence to the contrary, and Clemson and Auburn both obviously lacked anything like mid-season drive in their battle, annexed by the former by the margin of one field goal, 3 to 0.

Outside the conference, ten other conference teams found opposition, some of it comfortable, some inclined to be embarrassing.

Vandy demonstrated again a need for defensive strength, in permitting Ouachita to score 10 points against her own 39. Vandy's last Saturday win over Chattanooga was somewhat clouded by the 18 points scored by the Moccasins, although the strong Commodore attack netted enough to emerge safely.

Sewanee found a bigger job than could be successfully handled in Bryson, and the latter, accounted among the "smaller" colleges, went to the gymnasium with a 7 to 0 conquest.

V. P. I. Wins Easily.

V. P. I. won over Hampden-Sydney's experienced team without a great deal of difficulty, 13 to 0, indicating that Gustafons has been doing good work with this important conference aggregation.

Washington and Lee, while held to an actual tie by West Virginia, 6 to 6, can be accorded credit for a moral victory, and Mississippi Aggies demonstrated power in beating Birmingham-Southern, for it is admitted that the latter has one of the strongest lines in the section.

In a Friday game, Furman defeated North Carolina State, illustrating to the latter that they still have to bear down on backfield drive, even if the squad does boast considerable veteran membership.

One of the outstanding individual players of the week-end was Barnes, of V. M. I., who forms the nucleus for one of the best V. M. I. teams to appear in several years—even if they did get off to somewhat of a slow start against Georgia Tech.

John Brewer Back Home for Visit

Griffin, Ga., October 2.—(AP)—John Brewer, Griffin baseball player who is with the Washington Senators, arrived home this week for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Butler Walker. Brewer, a former football and baseball star of Griffin High school and of Georgia Tech, signed with the Senators last spring and was farmed out to Williamsport, Pa., in the New York-Pennsylvania State league. He closed the season with a batting average of .308.

Buffalo Wins Third Game of Series, 8-2

Buffalo, October 2. — (United News.)—Falling upon Bush and Ryan in the first two innings, the Buffalo Bisons, of the International league, piled up an overwhelming lead and won the third game of the "little world series" from Toledo, of the American association, 8 to 2.

Proffitt, on the mound for the Bisons, held the Mud Hens to six hits, one a homer by Fisher in the first inning.

The game was the third of the series, Toledo having won the first two.

Heat Is Fatal To Football Player

New Brunswick, N. J., October 2.—(AP)—Donald Morey, 23, right guard of the Manhattan college football team, died of what was said to be sunstroke at St. Peter's General hospital today. Morey was overcome during the football game with Rutgers yesterday and never regained consciousness. His home was in New Rochelle, N. Y.

VININGS HILLS CLUB TOURNEY IN 2ND ROUND

Second round matches in the Vinings Hills Golf club championship tournament were played off Sunday with most of the favorites surviving in the running for the handsome trophy offered by The Constitution to winner of the championship flight.

Following are the results of the second round matches:

New York May Hold Slight Edge on Form

Unofficial Records Show Teams To Be About Evenly Matched.

Pittsburgh, October 2.—(AP)—There is little to choose in the relative offensive and defensive strength of the Yankee and Pirate inner cordons, although the American leaguers hold, perhaps, a slight edge on form, such as it is revealed by the latest unofficial records.

Where the Bucs are strong on the left side, with Glenn Wright at short and Captain Pie Traynor at third, the Yankees appear considerably stronger on the other side, with Lou Gehrig at first and Tony Lazzeri at second.

Oustanding Pair.

Traynor and Gehrig are the outstanding pair. The Pirate captain generally rated the best third sacker in the game, has a big margin over his veteran rival. Joe Dugan, in every department of play. Gehrig, the "Boy Buster," also has a record of achievement, especially at bat, that outshines the performance of Joe Harris, but it is largely because the Pirate veteran, after finding National league pitching more to his liking than any he ever faced, slumped through illness.

Traynor has a margin of 71 points over Dugan in batting, while Gehrig has a 45-point edge on Harris. Traynor and Gehrig are comparative youths, in their prime, while Dugan and Harris are past the peak. Dugan, if his trick knee is in shape, may not be outshone by his rival in the field. Harris, too, if he recovers from the stomach trouble thas has been bothering him, may prove as dangerous a batsman as Gehrig, as well as reliable on the defense. Joe has a habit of getting his hits when they are needed most.

Yanks Slightly Better.

The keystone combinations are pretty well matched, although Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, the Yankee pair, boast slightly better marks than George Grantham and Wright, both at bat and afield. Lazzeri is steadier than Grantham on the defense, but both are dangerous long distance clouters. Tony has hit more homers, but Grantham has walloped more doubles and triples.

Koenig and Wright are a good deal of the same type, occasionally erratic, but often brilliant.

Wright has had four years of big league experience to Koenig's two. The Pirate star is more of a "clean-up" hitter, batting fourth. Wright led the club in driving in runs until Paul Waner came along to grab the honor this season.

Conner To Address Meet On Investment Trusts

Investment trusts will be one of the most important subjects to be discussed at the meeting of the National Association of Securities Commissioners, which opens at the Henry Grady hotel tomorrow. The topic will be introduced by Thomas B. Conner, formerly administrative officer of the Georgia Securities commission, now with Calvin Bullock, of 1 Wall street, New York, specializing in investment trusts. Prior to his official connection in Georgia, Mr. Conner was a reported for The Constitution and at one time financial editor of this paper.

Outlining the interest which the problem of investment trusts has for the "blue sky" officials, Mr. Conner, who arrived in the city yesterday, said:

"The investment trust, which is an old form of security in Great Britain, is comparatively new in America, but has recently gained such a vogue, particularly in the eastern section of the country, as to attract much attention from financial writers in the metropolitan press and to cause the law-enforcing officials some concern on account of the variety of the propositions submitted to them.

"There is nothing new in the principle of the investment trust. It merely seeks to gain safety through diversification of the investment by doing for the small investor what the savings banks, insurance companies and other large investors of capital have been doing for themselves for a long time. As developed in England, during the last half of the nineteenth century, they provel a vital factor in mobilizing the enormous capital reserves of that country and distributing them throughout the world to the development of newer regions where capital was scarce. A great deal of the capital which went into American industry at that time was obtained from British investment trusts.

"The organizers of these institutions took advantage of the wide difference in money rates between the home country and the new lands to make substantial profits for themselves. By careful management and wide distribution of their funds they were able to pay with safety larger dividends than any other form of finance company.

"When the war transformed the United States from a debtor nation to the world's greatest creditor, it was inevitable that the investment trust idea should cross the sea together with financial leadership. The first stimulus to its growth in this country, however, was given by the United States government itself when Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover sent Dr. Leland Rex Robinson in 1921 as our trade commissioner to London to study and report on the British investment trust.

"The investment trust partakes something of the nature of a holding company in that its business consists in buying and holding the securities of other companies. It does not seek to control such companies, but derives its profits from the income received therefrom reducing the risk by careful selection and wide distribution of its funds. Two types of investment trusts have so far developed in this country, the mobile or British type, where great latitude is allowed the management in the purchase of securities; and the fixed type, which is peculiarly American, in which the management is limited to the purchase of specified securities named in the instrument providing for their deposit with a trustee.

WATERWAY PROJECT TO TAKE SEVEN YEARS

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, October 2.—Plans worked out by the St. Lawrence waterway joint engineering board disclose that it will take at least seven years to complete the project after actual construction is begun.

A report made public here Sunday states that the board has concluded that maximum economy will be secured by choosing a construction period of seven years.

The board figures that if their program of construction is followed, the St. Lawrence seaway can be opened to deep draft navigation and the necessary electric power works installed by the end of the 7-year period.

An idea of the stpendous task before the builders of the seaway is disclosed by figures showing the amount of concrete which will be necessary and the amount of excavation and dredging which must be done. A total of 7,000,000 cubic yards of concrete will be used for the dams, power house and other construction work. It will also be necessary to excavate 80,000,000 cubic yards of dry earth, 12,000,000 cubic yards of dry rocks, and 3,200,000 cubic yards of subaqueous rock., Dredging operations call for the removal of from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 cubic yards of earth.

They Wouldn't Believe

By Roy Vickers.

SYNOPSIS.

On the way to Donald Brierly's house at Rubington for luncheon Connie Elmore, Donald's fiancee, tells her friend, Olive Weston, that Donald stands a chance of inheriting half a million from the estate of old Harrowby, a friend of Donald's father.

Olive and Connie share a flat in London. Olive is secretly in love with Donald but sincerely pleased at Connie's good fortune in winning him.

Sandle and Querk, solicitors handling the Harrowby estate, are crooked and plan to cheat Donald Brierly of the fortune by having a spurious heir appear whose claim is prior to Donald's. In the midst of the plotting Augustus Brierly, Donald's father, presumed to have died when the Titanic sunk, calls on Sandle. Querk suggests to Sandle that he invite Brierly to Harrowby house and there with the assistance of Querk's clerk, Wode, dispose of Brierly.

Connie decides to visit her old nurse, who is now caretaker of Harrowby house. Mrs. Jones is out, but Connie finds the key and lets herself in to wait for her. She hears strange noises in the library and going to investigate she sees Mr. Sandle and another man kill Mr. Brierly, whom she recognizes from his portrait. Rushing out of the house Connie stumbles into Mr. Querk. While telling her story, Querk pushes the bell and sends a signal to the murderers. Connie sees a policeman and calling him the three proceed to the library and Connie asks Querk to open the secret panel in the wall where she had seen the men place the body. It is empty. Querk accompanies her to the police station, where she tells her story to the police superintendent. Querk intimates that she imagined the scene, and in exasperation Connie goes to see Olive, who at first believes her story but later thinks she is the victim of an hallucination.

Querk requests Sandle to come to the superintendent's office, and he presents his alibi, which the police officer accepts. The two lawyers proceed to Wode's office, where old man Turle and his son, the spurious heirs, await them. The old man dies just after they walk into the office, and Sandle and Querk leave by the back door.

The next morning Connie calls on Querk and meets young Jones there. She recognizes him as her old nurse's son, but does not know that he has been posing as Henry Turle, Jr. Querk later pretends that Connie imagined she saw young Jones. He tells Olive that Sandle is about to bring a criminal suit against Connie unless Olive, as her nearest friend, has her committed to a private institution which he recommends.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

HARD AS NAILS.

Olive arrived at the office too early and for half an hour or so pottered about. Shortly before five she was in the reporters' room when Carthew, the assistant news editor, came in.

"Where's Kershaw?" he asked of a knot of men.

"The Old Boy sent him on the Blackmoor case," answered someone. "He won't be back for an hour yet."

"Well, while we're waiting for Kershaw, someone had better go down to Rubington and do a small descriptive," said the news editor.

"Rubington!" Something in Olive's brain jumped and she wheeled on Carthew.

"I know Rubington."

Carthew had not previously noticed her and he turned to her, his face lighting.

"You're the man I want, Miss Weston. You seem to have heard of Rubington, too. Well look here—our 'local' has phoned. Murder, d'you see? I don't want you to touch that. Mr. Kershaw will 'cover' that. I want a 'small descriptive'—house and garden—how the chap stands with the neighbors—whether he won the local tennis cup and so on—in fact, all the small stuff you can get. Don't interview the police but see everybody else who looks likely. Got it?"

Thought stood still. Olive wanted to scream with laughter. But her manner carried her through.

"Yes, all except the house and who murdered who."

"The chap's name is Brierly. The house—'Oaklands,' Lovelace road, Rubington. The police hold a search warrant on suspicion and they've found a body in the garden. They haven't got Brierly—they expect to get him this evening. You needn't 'cover' that. There's been a civil case about it—the murdered man—"

"You're hard as nails—Donald himself said s—you'll come through this without a tremor," Olive was saying to herself. To Carthew she rapped out:

"Yes, I read it. No mistake about the body in the garden, I suppose?"

"No. Everything plain as a pike staff. Papers taken out of the clothing but identification proved by documents found in the boot. But that's not for you—you get the house and the—"

Donald! She must get to him somehow. The dead body of Turle found in the garden!

"T' train service to Rubington is dead rotten. Can I take one of the runabouts?"

"I didn't know you could drive."

"Why I told you I was a chauffeur before you gents helped me to a literary career!"

Carthew looked doubtful.

"No, you had better not. It won't matter your being a bit late. Kershaw may want a car and several have gone out already."

In the next few minutes Olive did little in the way of conscious thinking. Impulse drove her while a clear purpose grew steadily in her brain.

First she went to a call box and telephoned to Maenton house.

"Is Mr. Brierly there, please?" she asked. "He was visiting Miss Elmore."

There was a delay which came perilously near to breaking her nerve before she received the answer.

"Mr. Brierly has just gone—not five minutes ago."

"Thank you," said Olive and cut off. Then she ran to the garage of the Daily Record and accosted the foreman in charge.

"Mr. Carthew says you're to give me the best runabout," she lied. "Tell some one to get it out while I'm signing, will you?"

Hard as nails! There was nothing in her brain now but that single impulse to get off.

"You gels, you're always worse than the men!" grunted the foreman. "You can have the No. 7 Ford. Go on, jump in. I'll crank her myself."

"No one knows you're really a pet but me!" said Olive as she leapt into the driver's seat. "And I won't split on a pal."

"Five minutes ago!" Olive was saying to herself as she turned on to the Embankment and opened the trottle. "And Donald does close on 40 miles an hour. That means I've got to be on the Kinver road in half an hour to meet him and cut him off. Fifteen miles—ten of them in traffic. . . . Henry darling—" she apostrophised the world famous manufacturer of cheap motor cars—"you've done impossibilities before. Just one more now—please—please—please!"

As he mounted his motor-cycle in the grounds of Maenton house and waved good-by to Connie, Donald Brierly came near to forgetting that the woman he loved was confined in a registered lunatic asylum.

All told, it had been a wonderful day. He had been taken to a private sitting room—a delightful room in which, amongst pale hangings and dark old furniture and rich red roses, Connie had been waiting for him, like a rose herself in her summery green.

Their meeting had affected both of them. But the tears she had shed had not been wholly tears of sorrow—rather tears of relief in the knowledge that his love for her was unshaken.

Donald realized how Olive's full wisdom in so arranging matters that Connie took it for granted that he had had nothing to do with her removal under restraint. He was grateful afresh to Olive and hoped intensely that one day the breach between the two girls would heal.

Only once had Connie referred directly to her surroundings.

"You know, of course, I am here because Sir Theodore Jelks thinks that I am—well, that I am—O, well, a little bit insane," she had said to him. "They are going to report on me while I am here; he is coming to see me in a month. I am simply enduring it as well as I can and looking on it as a foolish and inconvenient mistake. They will report that I've been leading a healthy open air life and have behaved normally in every way and Sir Theodore will discover that I'm cured."

"That's the finest thing you can possibly do!" Donald had exclaimed with enthusiasm. Inwardly his enthusiasm had been tempered by the knowledge that already the reports of her were anything but favorable.

Chug! He had reached the end of the drive and stopped in order to sign a chit for the opening of the gate. He looked at his watch. Three minutes past five. "Ought to be home by ten to six if the old tincan is up to her average," he reflected as he turned into the lane.

"That's the day, little girl!" he crooned as the speedometer mounted. "You'll have to slow down for Kinver—it isn't my fault, but you know you'll have to be careful—but there's a lovely stretch the other side."

He reached Kinver at half past five and in five minutes had "crawled" through it.

"That Nurse Flecker of Connie's is rather an interesting woman. So quiet! Must have been a beauty once, too, by the look of her. Very decent of Querk to insist on Connie being given a woman he knew personally! . . . Now, old lady, you can have your head!"

"A population of 500,000 by 1930" is Atlanta's Slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Important Information On Mailing Letters Given

Printing envelopes correctly is part of the Atlanta Envelope company's job, according to S. Guthman, president. In this connection Mr. Guthman calls attention to information given in a recent bulletin of the Direct Mail Advertising association.

"August 17 the postmaster general at Washington issued an order to all postmasters which should assist mailers materially in keeping their mailing lists right up to the minute. This applies particularly to ordinary mail of the third and fourth classes.

"When the sender desires to be notified of the forwarding of ordinary mail of the third and fourth classes, as provided by this new regulation, he should print in the lower left portion of the address side of the matter, in a prominent manner, unobstructed by any other matter, so that it will not be overlooked, the following request:

Postmaster: If forwarded to a new address notify sender on Form 3547, postage for notice guaranteed.

"The word 'forwarded' as used herein covers a change in the street address at the postoffice of original address as well as a change of address to another postoffice. A postage charge of two cents will be made for each notice of this kind on form 3547 furnished to the sender of the forwarding mail, such charge to be collected upon delivery of the notice to the sender, in the same manner as other postage due is collected.

"In other words, with the suggested notice in the lower left-hand corner of the address side of your envelope and the return address with the return postage guaranteed in the upper left-hand corner, you should be sure of getting a check upon your mailing list whether the letter is undelivered or is forwarded to your prospective customer at some other address.

"It is rather interesting," continued Mr. Guthman, whose concern makes more commercial envelopes than any other in the southeast, "to note how much more careful buyers of envelopes are today than they were 34 years ago, when the Atlanta Envelope company first entered the field. In those days matched envelopes—of a texture and color to match the stationary—were infrequent and the special sizes that flourish today were practically unknown. Then, too, it was not possible for a manufacturer a third of a century ago to give anything like the speedy delivery on envelopes that we are able to give today, thanks to the latest and most improved machinery. Envelope making is an interesting industry. If some of our many customers in and near Atlanta would take the time to visit our Stewart avenue plant I am sure they would find much to claim their attention."

Mr. Guthman extends a hearty invitation to all those who have the opportunity to visit his plant (the largest commercial envelope plant in the southeast) and see these modern and up-to-the-minute envelope machines in operation.

COCKTAIL SHAKERS HAVE LARGE SALE TO LEGIONNAIRES

Paris, October 2.—Cocktail shakers, auto horns of the Paris honking variety and penguin dolls were the articles which were purchased in largest numbers by the American legion convention visitors, according to Paris shopkeepers.

Decanters and pocket flasks also found many purchasers.

The legionnaires bought thousands of cocktail shakers, most of them of the thick cut-glass variety, with trickle tops. Many bought camouflaged liquor receptacle made by pasting together two or three books—usually leather-bound classics—then cutting out the inside to allow for the hiding of the glass liquor container.

Atlanta Growing Very Fast, Thousands Coming Monthly

Atlanta possesses many attractive geographical and climatic advantages and this, coupled with the fact that the educational advantages of this Gate City of the south is not to be surpassed by any city of its size, is proving a great magnitude to the thousands of new people that are moving into Atlanta this fall.

Our large department and wholesale stores are strong inducements, as well as the many fine churches and amusement places, to cause people to locate here.

In visiting the National Window Cleaning company, of 66 1-2 Ivy street, Saturday, we found the proprietors, S. L. Orr and William Silvers, very enthusiastic about this great influx of new families, a pleasing part of it, say these gentlemen, is that many of these people have heard about us and we are called to send men or women to clean the houses they are getting ready to move into.

For our part, we join in with the merchants and city officials in extending a cordial welcome to these new families and predict that they, too, will soon be ready to boost this hustling metropolis of the south and as it is cooperation that makes a progressive city grow, we will render the promptest service to all those wanting anything with a hard surface cleaned.

Should there be, perchance, any new or old citizen in Atlanta that does not know about the National Window Cleaning company, we can say that it has been established since 1912 and has a very good organization of experienced men and women that have been with them for many years.

This firm has always fully protected its employees under the workman's compensation law, and likewise protects its patrons from any theft or damage loss that can be traced to any of their employees while on duty. This assures everyone employing the National Window company that organized responsibility is back of every large or small job they do, and in this connection people cannot be too careful of whom they hire to do this class of work.

The National Window Cleaning company is well known to large contractors and builders, and past experience has proven to them that it is cheaper and better to have this firm, with their equipment and experienced people do their work than to try and do it themselves.

The management here announces that in addition to their regular personnel in their organization, E. L. Young is back with them after an absence of two years.

This adds one more good superintendent to look after their outside work and they are now better prepared than ever to assist everybody in their fall cleanup and a phone call, Ivy 2346, will sure to be promptly answered.

PLUMBING SUPPLY SHARES PROFITS WITH CUSTOMERS

Due to so much building and repair work going on in Atlanta and vicinity, this is a busy time of the year for the Pickett Plumbing Supply company, of 197-199 Central avenue, and its house force is kept on the jump filling large and small orders.

This big company carries everything required in the plumbing line. It buys in carload lots and sells to anyone, anywhere, in whatever quantity wanted. This means that the company's big four-story building is a busy place at all times and seasons of the year.

This firm does a big business with people living in the country who install their own water plants or septic systems, and it is not an unusual sight to see the farmers' trucks of near-by states loading up with some plumbing supplies which either they or their friends back home need.

This firm also does considerable business with building and road contractors who require much pipe in their construction work. During the past year many garage men from the country and small towns became regular customers and several dairymen also bought in large quantities.

The Pickett Plumbing Supply company has been passing an extra profit on to all out-of-town customers who order from them, their plan being when the purchase bill amounts to $100 or more they will pay the freight to any part of Georgia. When the customer lives outside the state they will equalize the freight rate, paying the same to the Georgia line.

As this firm has nice sample and salesrooms, which are easily located, they invite all those contemplating doing any kind of plumbing work, large or small, to come by and get their prices on whatever is needed.

The opoprtunity is also an added incentive to all out-of-town visitors to the Southeastern fair to help save the expense of their visit to Atlanta by getting all their plumbing supplies at greatly reduced cost.

Athens Attorney To Act as Solicitor During Superior Court

Athens, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) Wolver M. Smith, prominent Athens attorney, will act as solicitor general of the superior court here next week during the October term in the place of H. H. West, solicitor general. Solicitor West is recuperating from a recent illness.

Among the cases to be tried next week are two murder cases, one of them being that growing out of the mysterious death of F. W. Garrison, railroad employee, on a highway near Athens several weeks ago.

Work To Be Resumed Soon on University Building at Athens

Athens, Ga., October 2.—(Special.) University authorities expect to resume work on the commerce-journalism building within the next two weeks.

This building was begun with funds on hand from the million-dollar memorial campaign conducted by alumni of the university several years ago. Subscriptions to the fund, however, failed to come in steadily enough to meet the expenses of the construction in late summer and work was suspended. The building was expected to have been ready for occupation by the opening of school in September.

The building is to cost $250,000 and will be perhaps the handsomest and the most modern building on the university campus with the exception of memorial hall, also built by memorial funds.

Dowman-Wilkins, the reliable printers of 177 Luckie street, are running off the press today the City Builder, official publication and mouthpiece of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

This issue, like all its predecessors, is a fine specimen of the printer's art, and is a credit to the city, the association it represents and the printing house that prints it.

As the City Builder is mailed freely out of town, it represents Atlanta on the desks of firms very often thousands of miles away, and the officials of the chamber of commerce each year, when they award the yearly contract, must have positive assurance that the quality of work and prompt service required must be as good as they have been receiving, and this present issue begins the sixth straight year that they have awarded this firm their annual contract.

The City Builder, however, is only one of the 14 large monthly and weekly publications this progressive firm gets out, and due to their efficient organization and latest modern equipment all work here goes along nice and smooth.

This firm always carries a nice stock of the finest grades of paper and they print some fine catalogues and do printing of the better kind for many of Atlanta's leading business and professional people.

The president of this firm, A. E. Dowman, one of Atlanta's sterling citizens, who enjoys the confidence of every man he has business transactions with. Anyone in or out of Atlanta wanting good printing quickly done will do well if they give them a phone call at WAlnut 7102 and get information about how soon a salesman can submit samples and close figures on any kind or size of a printing job.

Dixie Mattress Co. Enlarge Scope, Begin Manufacturing

The mattress renovating people in Atlanta are all having their best year in this line of work. A visit to six of these shops during the past week found every one of them busy and all well pleased with the fall and winter outlook.

Especially was this so at the Dixie Mattress company, located at Edgewood avenue and Randolph street. This firm, which is headed by E. Moore, is a progressive leader in its line and is continually introducing some new innovations in Atlanta that tend to advance the city.

A few years back the Dixie introduced here a big, air-tight, metal, portable room, large enough to contain nearly a dozen mattresses. Then, after igniting some disinfectant, the door is sealed tight, after which no parasite or disease germ can exist.

Then this firm began the renovating of feather mattresses. The Dixie Mattress people, by an ingenious method of making nine separate units or pillows on one side and when the reverse side is turned it presents a smooth, soft surface, and all the comforts of a feather mattress may be enjoyed without the feathers shifting.

In renovating feather mattresses this firm treats the feathers like the fillings of other mattresses and after thoroughly sterilizing them, put on a brand-new tick or covering selected by the customer. While there is many an old feather mattress that is supposed to have seen its best days in Atlanta, if the owner will give this firm a ring at Ivy 0695 they will be surprised at how reasonably their old mattresses can be made new again.

While this firm has always made special-order mattresses for their customers to fit odd-size beds, they begin today to make regular and stock-size mattresses for the wholesale trade and for their customers, and as they are located right here where the most of their raw material is grown or produced, they say that they will have very reasonable delivery prices to offer to all their new and old customers.

TWO ARE DROWNED IN TENNESSEE RIVER

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 2.—(AP)—Walter William Watkins, 45, and his son, Walter William, Jr., 13, were drowned in Tennessee river this morning when their boat capsized. The accident was witnessed by a fisherman, who went to the scene and with the aid of others from shore rescued young Watkins, but he died on the way to a hospital. The body of the father was found four hours later. The victims had started on a fishing trip when the drownings occurred.

Florida Gas Tax.

Tallahassee, Fla., October 2.—(AP)—Collections from the 5-cent tax on gasoline sold in Florida amounted to $938,320.55 for August, according to figures made public at the comptroller's office.

MME. PANGALOS, TIRED OF HIDING, HAS SURRENDERED

Athens, October 2.—Mme. Pangalos, wife of the former Greek dictator, and believed implicated in a revolutionary plot, General Theodore Pangalos, has surrendered to the police.

Mme. Pangalos had been hiding in the house of former Minister of the Interior Vogopoulos, who was an officer of the government under General Pangalos.

Following the energetic measures last week by authorities in checking leading followers of General Pangalos from preparing a new movement for his reinstatement, it is considered impossible for the Pangalists to organize a renewed coup d'etat in the near future. It is believed the country will remain tranquil for some time.

Increase in Business Is Shown During Week

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—The dollar volume of business during the week ended September 24, as measured by check payments, was substantially higher than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of 1926, the department of commerce reports in its weekly statement. Wholesale prices showed practically no change from the preceding week but were still below the level of a year ago. Prices of cotton averaged lower than in preceding weeks but were substantially higher than in the same week of last year. Prices for wheat averaged lower than in either prior period, with iron and steel prices making similar comparisons. Receipts of cotton into sight, although greater than in the preceding week, were substantially smaller than in the corresponding week of 1926.

Loans and discounts of federal reserve member banks showed no material change from the preceding week but were higher than a year ago. Prices of stocks listed on the New York stock exchange averaged lower than in the preceding week but were substantially higher than in the corresponding period of last year. Interest rates on call loans, although lower than in the same week of the previous year, were higher than in the preceding week.

Bond prices averaged higher than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of last year. Interest rates on time money averaged lower than in either prior period. The federal reserve ratio averaged higher than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of a year ago. Business failures, although less numerous than in the preceding week, were slightly greater in number than a year ago.

The production of bituminous coal during the week ended September 17, although greater than in the preceding week, was smaller than in the same week of last year. The cut of lumber during the same week was larger than in either comparative period. The output of beehive coke was substantially smaller than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of 1926. Petroleum production again receded from the preceding week but was still well above the output of a year earlier. Wheat receipts at primary markets were substantially larger than last year, while receipts of cattle and hogs showed declines from a year ago.

Erratic Trend of Prices Features Cotton Market

New Orleans, October 2.—(AP)—Another week of extremely active trading, broad fluctuations and erratic trend to values featured the cotton market during the six-day period ending with the extremely nervous short Saturday session when values advanced and declined several times within a range of 30 points.

The first part of the week was characterized by a steady rise in prices from the low level reached at the close of the preceding week when the December position traded down to 20.17. Heavy rains in the western belt, particularly in Oklahoma, and a drop in temperature which led to a forecast for freezing which fortunately did not fully develop caused an advance which culminated Wednesday when December touched 22.29, a gain of 212 points from the low of the preceding week, or $10.50 a bale.

Such an advance naturally led to profit-taking and liquidation when the predicted freeze failed to materialize, but the decline was accelerated on Thursday by the circulation of a report that the Washington bureau of agricultural economics had issued a statement increasing the size of the carryover from the last crop by approximately 600,000 bales.

The decline which resulted carried December down to 21. , or 114 points under the high point of Wednesday.

A good deal of hedge selling undoubtedly helped the decline, but when the offerings were absorbed the market rebounded about 78 points from the low of the week on buying due to some rather small private crop estimates and a return of unfavorable weather in the western belt.

The market finally closed with a net gain for the week of 90 points on December.

FRUIT, VEGETABLE SHIPMENTS BREAK CAROLINA RECORD

Raleigh, N. C., October 2.—(AP)—Carlot shipments of fruits and vegetables from North Carolina for the 1927 season have broken all previous records, the state department of agriculture reported today. So far this season farmers of this state have shipped 17,719 carloads of these commodities to other states, as compared with 16,315 for the entire 1926 season; 15,914 for the 1925 season; 16,802 for the 1924 season; 11,712 for the 1923 season; 11,642 for the 1922 season, and 9,326 for the season of 1921.

The present increase is attributed by Commissioner William A. Graham to the fact that North Carolina farmers are putting the doctrine of diversification into practice, in that they are depending less on cotton, tobacco and other staples.

Following are total carlot shipments so far this season:

Apples, 64; string beans, 444; cabbage, 265; cantaloupes, 585; cucumbers, 919; lettuce, 446; mixed vegetables, 750; peaches, 1,648; spinach, 14; strawberries, 2,202; Irish potatoes, 7,482; carrots, 11; turnips, 4; watermelons, 1,041; sweet potatoes, 1,435; peppers, 39; grapes, 1; green peas, 569.

HOSPITAL EXPERT TO REPORT TODAY ON YOUNG SLAYER

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, October 2.—When Lyle Messner, 15, junior high school boy, is presented in court tomorrow morning on an indictment charging him with the murder of Kathleen Forrest, 6, the report of Dr. John Brennon, of the psychopathic hospital of the University of Iowa, will be given to the court.

Messner was under observation in his cell for three hours and it is known that Dr. Brennon informed Messner's attorneys that the boy had the mentality of a child of ten years, and that he was subject to epilepsy.

Messner's attorneys tonight said they would not decide what their plea would be until the report of Dr. Brennon was presented in court tomorrow, but they intimated they would demand a jury trial if the state still insisted on the death penalty.

FILIPINO LEADERS ORDERED TO PAY JUNKET EXPENSES

BY WALTER WILGUS.

Manila, October 2.—Expenses of Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate and Senator Sergio Osmena, who sailed yesterday for the United States to confer with President Coolidge on Philippine affairs, will be paid out of their own pockets or by contributions from friends, Ben F. Wright, insular auditor, ruling that government funds cannot be used for the purpose.

Wright, who is an appointee of the president, and who was the late Governor General Leonard Wood's right hand man in reducing government expenses, during the latter's administration, said if Senators Quezon and Osmena had been authorized, as a committee of the legislature, to present a petition to President Coolidge, he could legally release funds necessary, but he hinted this trip is more in the nature of a private junket.

U. S. AMMUNITION NEEDS STRESSED

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, October 2.—An appeal for wide support for a program calling for the building up of the army's depleted ammunition supply was sounded today by Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war, during a discussion of this country's defense needs. MacNider asserted that the supply of small arms ammunition now on hand is old and insufficient to last for more than three months in case of an emergency.

The secretary, who, as second in command in the war department, is charged with the task of keeping the nation's industrial preparedness structure functioning on an efficient basis, decried also failure of the country to supply the army with newly developed weapons which in practice proved far superior to those used in war time.

Specifically, Colonel MacNider mentioned the case of the recently developed "seventy-five," a weapon described as much superior to the French "seventy-five" used so extensively during the world war.

"We have cannon—seventy-fives, left from the war," MacNider said. "New ones already developed shoot nearly twice as far and as effectively. Why haven't we any? We have six."

Colonel MacNider pointed out that there is not only a shortage in ammunition for these guns but that no manufacturer is now building shells for this caliber of weapon. He asserted that it would take nearly a year even with the most painstaking advance planning to get into high on the delivery of the finished article. It would require 10 months, he said, to manufacture enough ammunition to make these guns useful.

"Ammunition," MacNider said, "is the great problem which faces those of us charged with the responsibility for national protection. There is little ammunition on hand now for any branch of the service and even with small arms ammunition it would take almost a year to get into quantity production."

BROWNS BEST SOX, 8 TO 3.

Chicago, October 2.—The American league season came to a close in Chicago today with an 8 to 3 victory for the St. Louis Browns over the Chicago White Sox. The Browns won the game by bunching their hits, one of which was a home run by Kress, with a man on base. Johnny Mostil played his first full game of the season for the White Sox, relieving the attack for the White Sox with four hits in as many times up, but Beck pulled out of several close places. Manager Sotalk gave several of his rookies an opportunity to display their wares.

WHAT'S THE SCORE!

St. Louis, October 2.—With the Cardinals leading 6 to 4 in the eighth inning with the Chicago Cubs here today, rain assured the retiring world's champions of second place in the National league standing by preventing completion of the first contest and washed out the second, ending the season.

There was a question as to whether the score would stand 6 to 4, including the home run made by Stephenson, Cub left fielder, in the eighth or revert to the end of the seventh inning which would have made the score 6 to 3. The official scorer decided to send the box to President Heydler with the score 6 to 4, including play in the eighth.

Rain drizzled on the players from the start. The Cubs were at bat in the eighth and Stephenson had hit a home run to right field. One had walked and Sherdel had replaced Haines and retired Grimm on a pop fly when Umpire Hart called time.

After waiting the customary half hour while the drizzle turned to a downpour the game was called off, bringing the final curtain on the season here.

REDS WIN LAST GAME.

Cincinnati, October 2.—Cincinnati won the last game of the season from Pittsburgh 1 to 0 today. The Pirates had but one regular in the lineup at the start, Lloyd Waner in center field. All other regular players returned to Pittsburgh after the Pirates cinched the pennant yesterday. The only run scored in the game was not earned as Hughey Critz tripled to the bleachers in the seventh inning, out scored on a passed ball. Peter Jablonowski pitched a good game for Cincinnati, allowing but four hits, three of which were made by Waner, Cvengros who started for Pittsburgh allowed two hits in five innings, while Lee Meadows permitted as many in three innings. Lloyd Waner was the only visitor to get as far as third base off Jablonowski.

GIANTS WIN EXTRA INNING.

New York, October 2.—Jackson's single in the tenth inning, scoring Lindstrom, who had doubled, gave the Giants a 5 to 4 victory over Philadelphia in the closing game of the season.

Harper, former Philadelphia outfielder, was the big gun in the New York attack. He drove out two home runs, the second tying the score in the ninth inning.

KNIGHT TO OPEN DECATUR LAUNDRY WEDNESDAY NEXT

Formal opening of Knight's Decatur Laundry & Dry Cleaning company on Wednesday, was announced Sunday by C. D. Knight, president of the Piedmont, Guthman and other allied laundry concerns of Atlanta and vicinity.

The new plant is located at the site of the old Decatur hotel, and is one of the most modern and up-to-date plants in the entire country. It will offer a convenient and thorough laundry service to patrons of the Decatur district, according to officials.

Women will be given souvenirs and the plant will be open to public inspection from the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night Wednesday, Mr. Knight said.

"Phenomenal growth of our business in that section of Fulton county has created a demand for better service, and that is just what our new plant is designed to offer," Mr. Knight said.

"There are many larger plants in the south, but none better equipped. The Decatur plant will offer the same broad and high class service our larger ones do."

Mr. Knight has been prominent in Atlanta business circles for many years. He is a former member of the Atlanta city council from the ninth ward.

CONGRESS TO ACT ON RAIL MERGERS

Washington, October 2.—(AP)—Legislation affecting the two great arms of transportation—the railroads and the merchant marine—will rise up to plague the seventieth congress.

Involved in the solution of each problem is a new declaration of policy with accompanying principles, the working out of which proved to be an insurmountable hurdle for several preceding congresses.

Ways and means of effecting consolidations of the railroads into a dozen or more giant systems is the outstanding subject so far as the land carriers are concerned, but the lesser questions of the long and short haul and surcharges on Pullman accommodations still are with congress.

Merchant Marine.

While less intricate in its details than the railroad consolidation measure, the merchant marine legislation is regarded generally as of equal importance since the sea fleet has the double function of commerce carrying in peace and naval auxiliary in war.

Although a vast fund of information, views and expert opinion on the question of railroad consolidation has been gathered by house and senate committees during the past four or five years, the two branches of congress still are far apart on the proposition of the general form the legislation is to have.

There also is a yawning gulf between congress and the officials of the carriers themselves on the details of the general subject. One of the perplexing problems is that of taking care of the short line roads which can not be abandoned since to do so would sound the death knell of many communities.

Compulsory consolidation after a given period for voluntary unifications is the end toward which the senate interstate commerce commission has been working, but the house committee has adhered to the principle of voluntary consolidations, its proposed bill being designed to remove many of the present legal and technical barriers to complete unification.

However far apart they may be on the fundamental principles involved, all parties to the controversy are agreed that the existing law is inadequate to meet the situation and that some additional legislation must be enacted if the fifteen hundred or more carriers are to be grouped into huge competing systems at vast savings in operation and other charges.

Round up in the merchant marine problem is the question of whether the government is to continue the operation of the fleet and make the necessary replacements and additions or it is to sell the ships and established lines to private concerns.

The deficit from federal operation is made up now directly from the treasury and the sale of craft and lines. Admittedly private owners can not operate the ships in competition with foreign lines without some form of subsidy. There are those who would rather see the ships under private control with a subsidy payment from the treasury than under government operation.

The suggestion of Edward N. Hurley, of Chicago, a former chairman of the shipping board, that the merchant

LAST RITES TODAY TO JUDGE HILLYER

Grieving thousands will pay final tribute today to Judge George Hillyer, eminent jurist, soldier and legislator, whose death early Sunday at the home at 818 Springdale road, terminated one of the most useful careers in the history of the state.

The funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Second Baptist church, with the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

The story of Judge Hillyer's life is closely allied with the progress and growth of Georgia over a period of 70 years. Although advancing age forced his retirement from active affairs several years ago, his health was excellent until a few weeks past when he suffered a sudden illness.

Born at Athens, Ga., March 17, 1835, a son of Judge Julius Hillyer and Jane Watkins Hillyer, he was educated at Mercer university, then Penfield. He was admitted to the bar while a very young man and a few years later was sent to the state legislature.

When the war between the states broke out Judge Hillyer organized a company in Walton county, known throughout the war as the "Hillyer Rifles." He led his command through the battles of Fredericksburg and Gettysburg as a unit of the army of northern Virginia.

Judge Hillyer framed the present charter of Atlanta. For many years he was a judge of the superior court here, and during this period examined Woodrow Wilson when the young attorney sought admission to the bar in Atlanta.

He was mayor of Atlanta in 1885 and in 1886. Retiring from the active practice of law in 1899, Judge Hillyer devoted most of his time to religious and educational work. He was for many years a member of the Southern Baptist Home Mission board, and a trustee of various schools and asylums. Many important contributions to the legal and technical world were penned by Judge Hillyer after his retirement.

Judge Hillyer survived all his brothers and sisters with the exception of Miss Eva Hillyer, now a resident of Decatur. His surviving children include Mrs. J. D. Comer, Mrs. Bernard Wolff, Mrs. Alfred C. Newell and George Hillyer, Jr., an official in the engineering department of the Southern railroad at Washington, D. C.

The funeral arrangements are in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Pallbearers have been announced as follows:

John Grant, Frank Inman, Marion Jackson, Howard Patillo, Gilham Morrow, Henry Grady, Sanders McDaniel and John M. Slaton.

MAYOR MOURNS HILLYER PASSING.

An expression of grief at the passing of Judge George Hillyer, noted Georgia jurist, who died at his home early Sunday morning, was made Sunday afternoon by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale in issuing a statement on behalf of official Atlanta.

"All of Atlanta's citizenship is made sad by the passing away of one of our most distinguished and useful citizens," Mayor Ragsdale said.

"As mayor, Judge Hillyer served the city well, and as a member of the water board for a long number of years, he played an important part, rendering service to the city that will always be recognized. As a judge and jurist, he held a position of honor second to none in the state and city's histories.

"And as a Christian gentlemen he was always at the forefront in his, the Baptist, denomination, letting his light shine that we might follow on.

"I knew Judge Hillyer personally for nearly half a century, and know just what an unselfish, useful life he led. He was a great inspiration to myself and all others who knew him.

"Another great character has crossed over."

BOYCE T. DORRIS, AUTOMOBILE MAN, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Boyce T. Dorris, 38, of 825 Clairmont avenue, Decatur, died early Sunday morning at a local hospital after a lengthy illness. Mr. Dorris was prominent in local automobile dealer circles up to the time of his retirement due to ill health last August.

Born at Spa, Ky., Mr. Dorris came to Atlanta at an early age, and after entering business in this city was prominently identified with the Atlanta Buick company for a number of years. He moved to Decatur nine years ago and up to his retirement in August was at the head of the Decatur Buick company.

Mr. Dorris began to fail in health last November, but did not become seriously ill until more than a month ago, when he was forced to give up his business activities by the condition of his health.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Dorris is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dorris, of Lewisburg, Ky.; a brother, J. B. Dorris, of Atlanta, and two sisters, Mrs. Ed Schweers, of Lewisburg, and Mrs. John Taylor, of Owensboro, Ky. He was a member of the Masonic order.

The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning from the First Baptist church of Decatur. The Rev. A. J. Moncrief, pastor, assisted by the Rev. J. M. Haymore, will officiate. Interment will be in Decatur cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.
